AUSTRIA BECOMES NAZI STATE

SEE BONDS AS ONLY WAY TO MEET RELIEF

Officials Consider Placing Issue Before Voters of City Immediately.

$50,000 NEEDED FOR YEAR

Council to Take Up Financing Problem at Caucus and at Session Next Tuesday.

The city of Mansfield today looked towards a proposed bond issue which would be presented to voters in a special election as the sole means of meeting the relief burden that will be turned over to the city tomorrow by the county commissioners.

Mayor Claude M. Hunter said that it appeared the city's only alternative was in the issuance of general bonds approved by the voters at a special election. He said that approximately $50,000 would be necessary to meet relief costs for the balance of the year.

Caucus Set for Friday.

City council will be called in caucus "probably Friday" to consider the problem of financing the relief burden, the mayor said. A special session will follow next Tuesday to vote on legislation decided on to raise funds.

Legislation also will be presented to council for approval authorizing Service-Safety Director Tracy C. Styert to create the administrative offices at the relief headquarters and set the salaries of the staff. This will be more or less of a formality as the relief headquarters will continue functioning without interruption after today when the county withdraws from the picture.

Of two possibilities for raising funds to buy supplies for the city's needy, a general bond issue appears to be the fastest, the mayor said. A special relief levy would mean waiting at least a year for funds.

Money in 90 Days.

He explained that the bond issue, if passed, would produce funds in approximately 90 days.

"In the meantime, the city can scrape together some of the loose ends to provide for payment of at least one month's bills," Hunter said. "Payment of foodstuffs for the other 60 days would have to be carried along on credit until funds were forthcoming from the bonds."

At the same time Hunter blasted at the "relief chiseler" and ordered police to investigate several cases of "chiseling" that had been brought to his attention.

"Immediate steps will be taken to eliminate the relief chiseler," he stated. "Several cases have

Whitney, Already Facing Prison, To Enter New Pleas

NEW YORK — (U.P.) — A five to ten year term in state prison lay ahead today for Richard Whitney, former president of the New York stock exchange, but that was only the beginning.

His plea of guilty to the charges prepared by District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey in connection with the failure of Richard Whitney and company was not the end of the road for Whitney. Still to come was hearing on the additional charges prepared by Attorney General John J. Bennett, jr., and to be pressed separately.

Whitney made it easy for the district attorney's office. With the same frankness he showed in assuming full responsibility for the Whitney company crash, he readily admitted taking $105,000 in securities from the estate of his father-in-law and additional securities from five other accounts to toss into his sinking firm.

Probes State Liquor Hauling Contract; Davey Defends Highway Department.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Atty. Gen. Herbert S. Duffy opened today an investigation into the activities of Shaw Transport, Inc., which holds the contract to haul the state's liquor, after Gov. Martin L. Davey, in a radio address, defended the highway department's "hot-mix" program.

While the governor protested over a state-wide network last night that "partisan intrigue" was responsible for charges of waste laid before the senate graft-hunting committee, the attorney general announced he had ordered a transcript of testimony before the committee dealing with the activities of Shaw transport.

The address was Governor Davey's third in as many weeks. Previously he had defended the liquor department which, the committee charged in a partial report, was "shot through with forgery and graft."

Duffy said he would study the transcript and if there was evidence that "something is wrong," he would "not hesitate to file a suit" to break the contract.

Witnesses testified before the committee that Shaw Transport was a trucking firm without trucks—that it paid the United States Lines, Inc., the firm previously holding the contract, 11½ cents a case for hauling liquor for which the state allowed 17 cents in its contract with Shaw.

Governor Davey devoted a large

IT'S LAST DAY

Midnight's Deadline for Filing Income Tax Returns.

While thousands of Americans —ranging from $1,000 a year clerks to multi-millionaires — struggled today with income tax problems in a last-minute rush to meet the midnight deadline for filing 1937 returns, the Mansfield office had its share of "deadline dodgers."

Four clerks in the federal office on the second floor of the postoffice scarcely had time to look up as long lines of persons waited to file their income reports. The office will remain open until 7:30 p. m. today, the final day for filing.

Income taxes paid today represent full payments or first installments on 1937 earnings. The revenue department estimated that $730,000,000 would be paid in taxes this month.

As Europe's blood pressure rises as a result of Adolf Hitler's coup in assimilating Austria, attention is focussed on the relative strength of European armies, and on the Rome-Berlin axis. The map above shows both. Lower picture shows Hitler speaking at Linz, just before starting for Vienna. Dr. Arthur Seyss-Inquart, chancellor of Austria, is shown in the background.

Ex-Mansfield Woman, Sister Of Davey Brothers, Killed

Mrs. Ellen Davey Jenkins, 59, sister of the six Davey brothers who have long been prominent in the steel industry, and a former Mansfield woman, was killed in Canton last evening when she was struck by an automobile which jumped a curb and ran across a sidewalk. She was Canton's first 1938 traffic victim.

Mrs. Jenkins died in the hospital four hours after being hit, but was not identified until 1 a. m. today. Her family searched frantically for her in the meantime.

Canton police were holding Moses Shrock, 57, of near Cairo, said to be the driver of the car, and Moses Troyer, 33, of Hartsville, on charges of intoxication. The machine plunged over the curbing, travelled more than 100 fet down the sidewalk, and across an intersection before coming to a stop, according to Canton police.

The car came to a stop in the yard of Dr. E. S. Folk, president of the Canton city council, after it had struck a tree and a telephone pole. Shrock told police that he became confused by lights on other cars and lost control of his car.

Mrs. Jenkins, who had gone for a short walk about 8 p. m., is believed to have been walking on the sidewalk when she was hit, but there were no witnesses to the accident. Neith Shrock nor Troyer saw Mrs. Jenkins or knew the car had hit her, according to Canton police.

Coroner E. C. Reno indicated he would file charges against Shrock today.

When Mrs. Jenkins failed to return home, the family became alarmed and started to search for

WATCH RIVERS AT PITTSBURGH

'Golden Triangle' Records 18-Foot Depth; Flood Stage 25.

PITTSBURGH —(AP)— Wary residents of Pittsburgh and Johnstown, heavy sufferers during the St. Patrick's day flood of 1936, eyed rising streams anxiously today despite the assurances of weather observers that a repetition of the 1936 disaster was unlikely.

At the "point" of Pittsburgh's downtown "Golden Triangle"—meeting place of the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers and point of origin of the Ohio—a stage of 18 feet was predicted for today.

Flood stage there is 25 feet.

NEWYORT, R. I.—(U.P.)—Severing of a telephone cable between the naval torpedo station and the mainland a month ago was a simple case of larceny and not a "spy plot," it developed today. John J. Sullivan, 27, and Angelo Hamos, 20, both of Newport, have confessed, police said, that they hacksawed the 2,000 foot cable and sold part of it for junk.

'BIG MOMENT' NEAR FOR ONDOV

Student Undergoes Operation Tomorrow on Which He Has Staked All Hopes, Life.

When the hands of the clock stand at exactly 2:30 tomorrow afternoon, the Big Moment will have arrived for Michael Ondov, the moment on which he has staked all of his hopes, and his life.

The 24-year-old divinity student will undergo a spinal operation at General hospital, with Dr. H. E. LeFever, head of the staff of White Cross hospital, Columbus, and one of the great spine surgeons in the country, performing the delicate operation.

Ondov, graduate of Wittenberg college and studying for the ministry at Hamma Divinity School, has been in General hospital since Nov. 5, victim of a spinal paraysis which affected the entire lower part of his body. The paralytic condition followed an auto accident in which his back was broken.

Mansfield has been interested in the case because of Ondov's courage and gallantry in the face of a personal tragedy which cut short his plans for a career in the ministry. His parents, who reside in Lakewood, have sacrificed their home for him since the accident, and General hospital staff has made it possible for him to remain at the institution for his operation, where he will be surrounded by friends.

During the past four months Ondov has had every advantage that could be given him here, but medical science and care have been unavailing against some unknown pressure against the spine.

TOWNSHIP ACTS

Orders Compulsory Vaccination of All Pupils by Sept. 1.

The Springfield township board of education today had ordered the compulsory smallpox vaccination of all pupils and teachers in the township schools after Sept. 1.

The board acted after the county board of education recommended that the 18 townships in the county take individual action on the matter.

Springfield township, in which the Ontario consolidated school is located, is the first of the townships to order compulsory immunization.

L. C. Stingel, superintendent of the Springfield township schools, said he had submitted a recommendation to the school board for the passage of the measure.

"It is for the protection of the 500 pupils in the Springfield township schools to guard against any reoccurrence of smallpox in our school system," Stingel said.

TWO GANGS OF BOY BURGLARS LAND IN COURT

Youths Admitted Breaking Into Church, School, Library, and Y. M. C. A.

ONE SENT TO LANCASTER

Four Others to Be Paroled to Relatives While One Is Still Being Sought.

Two gangs of Mansfield boy burglars who admitted burglarizing a church, a school, Y. M. C. A. and Public Library had been broken up today by Judge C. J. Anderson in juvenile court, with one of the boys to be sent to the Boys' Industrial School at Lancaster.

Four of the six youths involved in the robberies will be paroled to relatives, Judge Anderson said. The other member of the group has not been apprehended. The five were arraigned yesterday afternoon in juvenile court.

Range From 11 to 16.

The boys, ranging in age from 11 to 16 years, were arrested by police over the week-end after they had broke into St. Peter's Catholic church, St. Peter's parochial school, the Y. M. C. A., Public library and admitted the theft of several women's purses.

Two brothers, 11 and 13 years old, worked together at purse-stealing, they said, obtaining entrance to offices and homes by asking for work. They admitted thefts in recent weeks at the Mansfield-Leland hotel, Central Fruit company, Eagles lodge hall and the Bissman company.

The older of the pair will be returned to Lancaster, Judge Anderson said, while his brother will be paroled to his mother.

Church, School Damaged.

Four youths, three of them 16 years old and the other 15, were involved in the church, school, library and Y. M. C. A. robberies, the court was told. The church and school were damaged as the youths sought loot.

One of the 16-year-old boys was said to have left the city and had not been apprehended today.

Judge Anderson paroled the 15-year-old boy to his mother with the order that he stay off the streets after 9 p. m. While the other two cases were continued, the judge said he planned to parole the boys to relatives and require them to submit regular reports to probation officers.

A sixth boy, a nine-year-old colored youth, who was in court yesterday on the complaint of his mother, will be sent to the juvenile research bureau at Columbus, Judge Anderson indicated. The boy, said to be sub-normal mentally, runs away from home and sleeps on porches, his mother said.

Guard Consulate As Demonstrator Burns Swastika

ST. LOUIS—(U.P.)—Police guarded the German consulate today after an anti-Nazi demonstrator burned a swastika flag flying from a window of its offices in a skyscraper.

Dr. Herbert Diel, consul, protested to city officials and termed the incident "an insult to my country."

A crowd in the street cheered while an unidentified man leaned from a window and set fire to the flag.

The cheers drew attention of consulate attaches, who hauled in the flag before it was destroyed. Police, who a few hours earlier dispersed a crowd attempting to enter the consulate to protest against the display of the swastika, searched the building futilely.

The burning was the second attempt in three hours to destroy the flag. Earlier another unidentified man hooked the flag with an umbrella handle but was prevented by police from tearing it from the mast.

HAILS HITLER AS DICTATOR OF 7 MILLIONS MORE

Tells New Subjects They Must Meet New Responsibilities; Jews Banned From Voting; Formal Address On Union Unusually Brief.

BULLETIN

MUNICH, Germany—(AP)—Adolf Hitler arrived here by special airplane tonight, returning from his triumphal four-day visit to Austria, which he absorbed into the German nation.

(By Associated Press)

VIENNA—Germany took over the complete Austrian government today just after Fuehrer Hitler, from Vienna's historic Heroes Square, appealed to 7,000,000 new subjects of Nazi Germany to meet their new responsibilities.

Simultaneously it was announced Jews henceforth would not be allowed to vote.

After Foreign Minister Wilhelm Wolf relinquished the Austrian foreign office to German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop the Austrian treasury was absorbed into the German treasury.

The forestry office became a continuation of Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering's department.

The interior ministry, war department and other parts of the Austrian government all were turned over to German officials.

As far as was known no officer resigned rather than break his oath of loyalty to former Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg's regime.

Hitler, speaking from a rostrum in Vienna's historic Heroes Square, today told 7,000,000 new Austrian subjects of Nazi Germany in seven curt sentences to meet their responsibilities as they did in the past.

He promised them hard work for economic betterment.

He told them Austria would be a fortress of national socialism.

The fuehrer, entering the square by the Burg (cattle) gate, never opened except for conquerors and the most important state occasions, made two significant references that hundreds of thousands of wildly cheering persons who are now Germans—not Austrians—applauded almost unceasingly.

One was his reference to Arthur Seyss-Inquart, who succeeded Kurt Schuschnigg as chancellor, as the "governor of Austria."

He thus reduced Austria to the status of another gau, or section of the German fatherland.

His other reference was a warning that German strength increases with the amount of opposition brought against it.

Addressing an almost hysterical mass of humanity as "German men and women," the fuehrer asserted:

"In the last few days have occurred events which cannot be evaluated yet—a unification of the German nation.

"I know this new portion of the German reich will meet its responsibilities as the old nation has."

Waves of shouting interrupted his address. The surge of excitement swelled from the massed square to the blocks beyond, as all Vienna went wild to greet the Austrian-born leader who had returned as the ruler of both Austria and Germany.

At the conclusion of a surprisingly short speech, Hitler walked down the stairs of the Heroes monument from which he greeted war veterans, some of whom were brought to the base of the story-high memorial in wheel chairs.

Afterwards he drove away in his automobile with Seyss-Inquart at his side.

Some observers though significant Hitler's passage recalling Austria as a historic "outpost" and "newest bulwark of the German people in which he said:

"Through centuries in troubled

Duce, Fearing War, Left Hitler Clear Path to Austria, Belief

ROME—(INS)—Premier Mussolini permitted Chancellor Hitler to march into Austria unchallenged in order to save the peace of Europe.

So declared an unimpeachable Italian source who is in a position to speak for the Fascist government today in giving International News Service a straight-from-the-shoulder clarification of Italy's policy in the current international drama.

"Opposition to Hitler would have meant war," this source explained. "That is why the Italian government rejected the French government's bid for joint military action against Germany."

This informant explained that Premier Mussolini was prepared to sacrifice prestige, pride, "anything except human life" to avoid such a war.

"Let's not delude ourselves," he added. "The Germans already were at Brenner Pass. Under conditions of modern war, with the speed of motorized transport and the high speed of bombing planes, the value of Austria as a cushion state had vanished.

"In this strength and in the promise of Hitler never to violate the Italian frontier we have great faith."

Italy's official view is that former Austrian Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg got what he deserved for attempting to call a plebiscite on Austrian independence without consulting Rome and Berlin. Had he done so, Mussolini might have been able to dissuade him from carrying out that plan.

But now, it was stated, Italy can only echo approval of what has happened.

Newsmen Held Prisoner, Nearly Miss Hitler's Vienna Speech

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
(INS Staff Correspondent)

VIENNA—The entire foreign press corps was held prisoner at gun-point until just before Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler today formally proclaimed the union of Austria and Germany in a speech to countless thousands in Heroes Square.

Fifty-five foreign correspondents representing the press of the world were held for half an hour at the Bundes Kanzlei headquarters of the Austrian government and released just in time to join the hysterical throng gathered beneath an ocean of flags to hear the fuehrer.

No official explanation of the detention was given.

After receiving police cards at the Bundes Kanzlei, we went downstairs, where four years ago ex-Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss was murdered and where I once before was imprisoned while viewing the scene of his death.

With us were 10 high officers of the Austrian army, including two generals.

We were stopped at the door by a Nazi sentry.

"Stand back!" shouted the sentry.

"Do you see my rank? Do you you see who I am?" one of the generals asked.

The sentry replied:

"I only know I have orders to shoot anybody who tries to get out that door, and I will shoot!"

He shook his rifle in our faces.

The crowd fell back silently, some stumbling but all obeying the representative of the unmistakable master of Austria.

'Forget Him' Adviser Tells Girl

By VIRGINIA LEE

WORRIED PEG is only 17, but she is desperately in love with a young married man. He loves her, too, but they have never done "anything dishonorable," she writes.

"We've both tried to be fair to his wife," she says. "Virginia, why is it that folk give all their sympathy to the neglected wife and condemn us fallen girls? Can we help it when we fall in love?

"I'm so miserable I don't know what to do. I can't eat. I can't sleep. I try to be cheerful for my family's sake, but I'm near the breaking point. I've lost weight. Some day I'm going to break. I can't live like this.

"Virginia, please help me. What shall I do? Shall I leave the community for a while? Shall we go to his wife?"

Yes, Peg, certainly you may call me by my first name. Folk usually give their sympathy to the wife because she is the greater sufferer. Imagine that you are married to this man you love so desperately. Then imagine that he grows colder and colder in his treatment of you, and you finally find out that he loves another girl better than he does you. How would you feel, you who love so desperately, you say? His wife probably has the same feeling for him that you have—maybe even a deeper feeling, or isn't that possible? She has given him her trust and love and has been making what she hopes is a happy home for him.

First such a wife is hurt and puzzled by the difference in his manner towards her, then anguished by knowing that someone else has taken her place with him.

Future Now Hopeless.

She probably went into marriage with such high hopes, planning for home and maybe babies. Now the future looks hopeless. Do you get the picture? Are you, too, not sorry for a wife in such a case?

And while the "fallen girl" as you call her, may not have meant to fall in love with another girl's husband, and shouldn't be blamed for thinking him lovable, it surely isn't fair play for her to accept his love and attentions, is it? They don't belong to her, do they? The odd part of it is that the other woman always thinks the wife is selfish to hold on to her own husband. "Would you want to hold a man who wanted to be free?" one asked me. I said no, and I probably wouldn't, but after all, a wife promises to love, honor cherish "until death do them part," and why should she hand him over to the first girl who catches his fancy? He made the same vow, and why should he break it?

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

CLEAR THE DECKS

Most of the successful lead-throwing end plays depend upon the stripping of somebody's hand, either your own and dummy or that of the defender who is expected to make the lead that helps you. In case of such plays at no trump, it is usually necessary to deprive the opponent of any cards in a certain suit or suits. In a suit contract, sometimes it is just as well if you completely eliminate all cards of certain suits from your own two holdings. Then the poor defender either leads up to your honor or honors in a tenace position, or gives you a chance to choose the holding with which you will ruff, while you discard from the other.

North and South reached a contract of 5-Clubs on this deal. South's original call was 1-Club,

	♠ 10 8 6 4 ♥ A ♦ A 9 4 ♣ 9 6 5 3 2
♠ A Q 9 ♥ Q 10 8 ♦ K Q J 10 3 2 ♣ 8	W. N. E. S.	♠ J 5 3 2 ♥ J 9 7 6 5 2 ♦ 7 5 ♣ 4
	♠ K 7 ♥ K 4 3 ♦ 8 6 ♣ A K Q J 10 7

(Dealer South. Both sides vulnerable.)

which West overcalled with 1-Diamond, North put in a bid of 3-Clubs and South bid 5.

The diamond K was led and won with the A. A club was then led to the A and followed by a heart to dummy's A. A club put South in the lead to cash the heart K, on which a diamond was discarded and the last heart ruffed. Now declarer tried the spade to the K, which West won with the A and cashed a second spade, setting the contract.

With West's overcall it was very evident he held the spade A. The very simple play of putting West in with a diamond, instead of touching spades, would have forced West to lead spades and the contract would have been safe.

Tomorrow's Problem.

	♠ 8 6 ♥ Q 5 ♦ A K Q 10 6 2 ♣ A J 5
♠ A Q ♥ A 10 9 8 6 4 ♦ 9 7 ♣ Q 10 6	W. N. E. S.	♠ 10 9 4 3 2 ♥ 7 ♦ 8 5 4 3 ♣ K 9 3
	♠ K J 7 5 ♥ K J 3 2 ♦ J ♣ 8 7 4 2

(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

With the heart 6 led against his 3-No Trump contract what is South's best play to make the contract?

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, Mar. 16.

ACCORDING TO the predominant influences for this day, there may be temptations to launch plans or make contacts of an experimental nature. These are not under favorable auspices for success. There are dangers from strangers and in untried methods. Legal complications or distorted documents in these may figure. Keep on, with industry and sound judgment, to develop plans, and seek diversion in social, domestic or artistic pursuits.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves under an urge to put over expansive new propositions or important undertakings, but it would be better to defer this until a more propitious time. Strangers, legal complications and other detriments are possible. Seek diversion socially, but don't neglect to continue cherished plans.

A child born on this day may be clever and energetic, although adventurous, restless and fond of change or travel.

Cream the butter. Mix the beaten egg, honey and milk. Add the nuts and fruits to the sifted dry ingredients and add alternately with the liquid to the butter. Drop by small spoonfuls on a greased sheet and bake in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) for about 10 minutes.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

I HEARD nothing from Dicky during the forenoon of the day following the unpleasant incident of the drunken woman calling him, and my spirits rose accordingly. If he had called and attempted any explanation of the occurrence, it would have been positive proof to me that the manager's lame explanation of a Mrs. Glavan calling her husband was a fabrication. His silence made me hope, unreasoningly, that the manager might be telling the truth.

Common sense warned me that I could justly be dubbed the world's most gullible person if I should believe Mr. Miller's story. It was too far-fetched, altogether too pat. But, woman-like, clung to anything which would save me the knowledge that some common drunken woman had hold enough upon my husband to warrant calling him up and demanding to see him.

Uneasy About Mary.

Miss Whitlock carefully avoided any reference to the contretemps, and I, of course, did not mention it. At first Mary also was silent concerning it, but I had the uneasy feeling that questions about it were so near the surface of her bubbling talk that they might froth over at any second.

I decided not to begin work with Mary upon the play for a day or two, and surprisingly, she agreed with me, her frenzy for action of any sort apparently having vanished with her arrival at a different scene than the one which had seen her enforced parting from Noel.

Spend Lazy Morning.

We spent a lazy morning reading the morning papers, listening to a radio program in which all three of us were interested, but for the most part loafing luxuriously. And it was over the luncheon table that Mary broached a plan which she evidently had been mulling over while she rested.

"Look here!" she said abruptly when we had finished our dessert, a fluffy, delicious concoction in which tapioca and oranges figured. "Do you realize that there's no use of both you and Miss Whitlock being 'on duty' with me at the same time? Even in the prisons where the most desperate criminals are confined, I don't believe there's more than one warder to a prisoner at a time.

She gave a wry smile, and I realized anew the humiliation that was hers because of the peculiar position in which her father-in-law's tyrannical espionage had placed her.

I smiled at her sally, and purposely struck a light note.

"Elucidate," I commanded. "In your uncle's horrid parlance, you evidently are 'cooking up something'."

"Right you are!" she said, "and a fine juicy mess it is too."

She turned to Miss Whitlock with an engaging air.

Invites Nurse to Go

"Have you friends in New York?" she said, "Or if you haven't, aren't there places and things you want to see?"

"I fancy I might find a few things of interest in New York," the nurse returned dryly, "but I shall have hours when I am off duty."

"Fiddlesticks!" Mary retorted, then apologized quickly for the rudeness.

"Sorry!" she said contritely, "but my family will tell you that when I get an idea into my noddle, there's no living with me until I get it out. I simply forget that there's anything like manners in the world. But here's what I mean."

We looked at her attentively and indulgently as she paused and then rushed on.

"You'll be doing day and night duty both—not allowed to leave my si--i-de whenever Auntie Madge goes away. My idea is that you grab the days now when there's nothing to do here, and have yourself a time in the city, returning here only for meals and sleep and whenever you want to come up for air."

THEATER

UNLIKE the other child stars who have gone on trips, Shirley Temple will make no theater appearances, nor will her parents permit her to be exploited in any manner. Their desire to make the sight seeing trip unaccompanied and without fanfare met with strenuous studio objections because of kidnap possibilities. Practically all other famous child stars have been taken on personal appearance tours, including Jane Withers and Bobby Breen. The Temples have refused several fortunes in turning down contracts to show their famous daughter outside of Hollywood. Rochelle Hudson and Dixie Dunbar were among the contract players at 20th Century-Fox whose contracts were not renewed this year because of economy measures. Miss Hudson had been with them eight years . . . Lionel Barrymore will play the role of Granpa Sycamore in "You Can't Take It With You."

Whistle at Work.

"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," which the Ohio theater is offering to Mansfield movie goers this week, brings a type of entertainment that is equally suited to young and old, for the old fairy story is pictured so beautifully that the characters seem to be real and to come to life on the screen. Never was there an assortment of such charming little animals and birds as those that flocked around Snow White when she fell weeping in the enchanted forest, and never was there such a house cleaning as that which Snow White and all of her forest friends give to the cotage of the dwarfs. The squirrels used their busy tails for dusting purposes and drying the dishes—all to the merry tune of "Whistle While You Work." There are a number of songs in the picture and all of them hit-tune calibre, while the human voices that were synchronized with the cartoons were chosen for their soft, dream-like quality.

Novel Crook Theme.

The romance between Lee Tracy and Joan Woodbury shares equal interest with the novel crook theme in "Crashing Hollywood," which the Madison offers Wednesday and Thursday. Tracy is seen as a scenario writer, while Miss Woodbury is an aspiring actress. Complications develop when Tracy unknowingly forms a collaborating partnership with an ex-convict and writes the story of a famous bank robbery so authentically that Miss Woodbury becomes convinced that he must have been a participant in the crime. Matters are not straightened out until the real culprit is located. Today's feature at the Madison is Robert Montgomery and Virginia Bruce in "The First 100 Years."

Singer Plays Singer.

Kenny Baker, who plays the title role in "Mr. Dodds Takes the Air," is seen as a country boy who makes a hit as a radio singer and whose fame increases as he becomes correspondingly indifferent. His penchant for inventing gadgets finally brings him an opportunity to cash in on millions, and he immediately becomes the target for designing women. Chief of the feminine beguilers is blond Gertrude Michael, while Alice Brady plays a harmless widow who merely wants to annex the radio singer as another husband. Jane Wyman, an old sweetheart, manages to protect him and to secure his famous invention against his attackers. It is based on a Clarence Buddington Kelland story. Jack Holt in "Making the Headlines" is the second feature at the Majestic.

Yukon Romance.

Bette Davis and Leslie Howard, who are co-starred in the romantic comedy "It's Love I'm After" at the Ritz, are playing together for the third time. They had previously made "Of Human Bondage" and "The Petrified Forest." Olivia de Havilland has a major role. Filling out the two-feature bill is "The Barrier" filmed from Rex Beach's famous story of Alaska built around Poleon Doret, (Leo Carrillo) Necia (Jean Parker) the little half breed with whom Lieut. Burrell (James Ellison) falls in love and risks his standing in the army. The story was written about the time Beach had the fiction reading world waiting for his stories on Alaska and the Yukon, and it pictures the great northwest territory with glamour and understanding.

FINDS SMALL HOME DESIGNS ARE IMPROVING

FHA Official Says Builders Now Aware Good Homes Can Be Built For Less.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Evidence of improvement in planning and designing of homes following a series of small-home-planning conferences held during the past year is reported by Howard Leland Smith, chief of the Federal Housing administration's architectural section.

Smith, who held 38 conferences with builders, architects, contractors, and materials dealers during the year, stated that the evidence of improvement in planning and design tends not only to lessen the risk on mortgage insurance but carries out the intent of the National Housing act, "to encourage improvement in housing standards and conditions."

10,000 Attended.

Over 10,000 builders, bankers, architects, material dealers, and the general public attended the small-home-planning conferences, Smith said.

"Besides stimulating small-home construction," he said, "the conferences demonstrated the need for sound and intelligent planning, not only for the neighborhood but for the house itself. We also stressed the necessity of obtaining plans which have a high degree of livability and privacy, together with attractive exteriors which create a desire for ownership. These were the predominating factors of our program.

"The conferences also brought out the fact that competent architectural service is essential in order to obtain low cost. Low cost comes from intelligent use of materials, taking advantage of standard lengths of structural members and stock sizes of millwork, avoiding unnecessary corners, and obtaining a minimum of hall spaces.

"Through the use of these principles builders are now aware that good homes, well planned and attractive, can be profitably produced at a cost, including the lot, at a price well under $5,000."

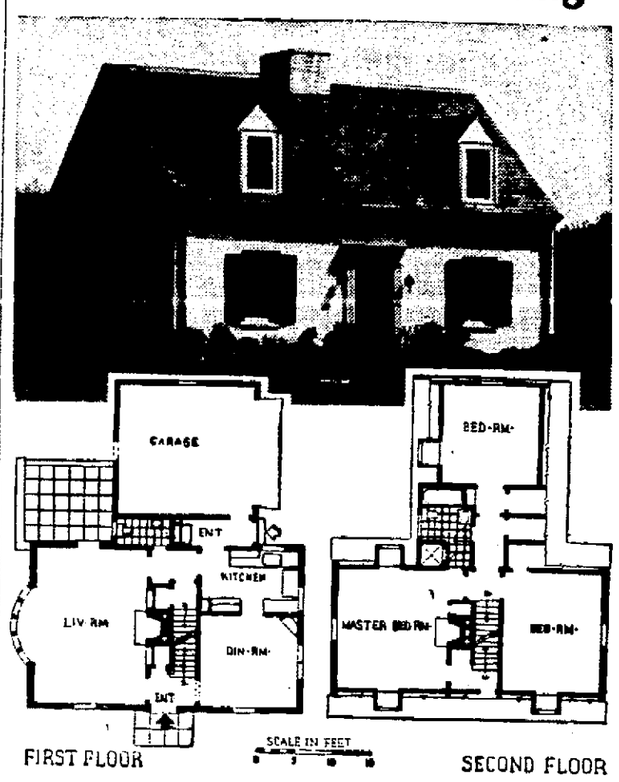
Result of Skillful Planning



For conservative souls who like a calmly conventional house and hate architectural extremes, this Manhasset, Long Island, home is ideally suited. It's not showy, but it's substantial, and the architect used considerable discrimination about details.

The dining room is square—a good shape for convenient service—the lavatory is well placed the garage handy. And the living room has a grand bay window.

Of the three bedrooms, one is unusually sizeable. The bathroom is located for maximum economy.

GUEST ROOM

For a top floor guest room with a homey atmosphere, jonquil yellow walls surround a deep brown floor. Pale green enamel is used for dressing table and beds, banded with a slightly deeper jade green. The inside surfaces of the built-in bookcase are nile green. A sewing cabinet is enameled jonquil yellow and a wing chair is upholstered with green chintz patterned with coral. The glass curtains at the windows have narrow green valances and a coral-toned spread covers the bed.

URGE TO BUILD COMMON TRAIT IN U. S.; GIVES ONE SECURITY

One does not have to seek far to find evidence of the fact that the desire of people to own their homes is well nigh universal. There is something about owning a bit of God's good earth, with a habitable, homey shelter thereon, that imparts a sense of security which nothing else exactly fills.

But the urge to plan and build one's own home is even more deeply rooted. It springs unbidden from man's inherent creative instinct, and embraces three compelling attributes—the delights of planning and choosing, the satisfaction of achievement, and the pride of possession.

Many well-designed and carefully constructed homes are usually on the market some of which might more or less fill your general requirement. But barring miracles, the only way you will get a house entirely suitable to all your needs and tastes is to build one. A ready-built house will save you time and trouble, but you will miss the creative pleasure of seeing a house emerge which is perfectly adapted to all your requirements, and afterwards, the satisfaction of living in a house in the building of which you played an important part.

Add to this the feeling of permanence, stability and security that comes from the possession and occupation of a house which is your own in a very special sense—and there you have the incentive to build.

Referendum for U. S. Naval Expansion Bill Proposed

URGES VOTE IN NOVEMBER ON DEFENSE PLAN

Lawmaker Says Construction Won't Be Delayed If Bill Meets With Favor.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — A proposal that the people vote on the administration's billion dollar naval expansion program at the November election came today from Representative Sauthoff (Pro.-Wis.)

Asserting the construction program could not be started for two years, Sauthoff said nothing would be lost if the voters decided in its favor.

Constantly reminded of the shifting European panorama, the house continued its discussion of foreign policy implications in the bill to enlarge the navy.

Claim Adequate Defense.

Opponents of the legislation contended the existing national defense was adequate.

Proponents argued that the "inevitability" of another European war made it imperative for this country to strengthen her naval forces.

Representative Tinkham (R.-Mass.) declared in yesterday's debate that President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull have been "not only friendly but in alliance with England and England's policies."

An angry denial came from Chairman Vinson (D.-Ga.) of the house naval committee, who asserted there was "not a scintilla of evidence" to back up the assertion.

BACKS McNUTT STAND

MANILLA — (AP) — President Manuel Quezon today agreed with High Commissioner Paul V. McNutt that the question of Philippine independence should be reexamined in the light of recent disquieting world events.

The dapper executive, who has advocated immediate independence, concurred after listening to a broadcast from Washington, D. C., in which McNutt urged that American sovereignty should remain in the islands.

Under the Tydings-McDuffie act, the Filipinos are guaranteed independence in 1946 McNutt asked immediate co-operation of Filipino leaders and Americans in a "realistic re-examination of their long-range interests and our own."

'Snow White' Sets Record Here, Too; Stays All Week

"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" which has been smashing theater records all over the country, broke one in Mansfield yesterday, when more than 3,500 persons saw the Walt Disney picture at the Ohio theater.

That, according to Manager Frank Harpster, is more people than ever witnessed any picture at the theater on a Monday.

"Snow White" didn't break the Sunday record, though. The weather might have had something to do with that, as well as the fact that a lot of youngsters who came to the show Sunday afternoon stayed to see it twice and three times. That kept a lot of adults from getting in. And Sunday night's rain kept a lot of people at home. Even so, more than 5,000 saw "Snow White" Sunday. The Ohio Sunday record, according to Harpster, is held by "Waikiki Wedding" with better than 7,000, while "Saratoga," which drew better than 5,500 ranks second.

"Snow White" will be held over for the entire week, and a special show for children will be given at 10 a. m. Saturday, Harpster announced today.

Up and Down THE STREET

Major Norman Imrie, Columbus newspaperman and lecturer, who spoke last night at the "ladies night" dinner of the Mansfield Foremen's club at the Mansfield-Leland hotel, almost swept the ladies off their feet with his flattering toast to them. "I've talked before so many Chambers of Commerce and men's clubs and taught so many boys' classes," Imrie said, "that I'm overjoyed tonight to see the bleak scenery so charmingly punctuated."

When Mansfield Boy Scouts gather Thursday evening at the Westinghouse cafeteria for the 18th annual Father and Son banquet, it will be the first time in 18 years they will have had to eat in two "shifts" to handle all those who want to attend. Floyd Dent, scout executive, said more than 450 will be on hand, with the first group going to the table at 5:30 p. m., and the remainder at 6:30.

A Shelby patrolman who sees no harm in practical jokes, decided he would change his tactics a little the other day, but today he wished he hadn't. He told a friend about how a hardware store had been just robbed. The friend listened attentively, then told someone else, and before long the officers on duty at the Shelby station were receiving calls about a robbery in which a bandit was shot. Some time later the faked story was traced to its source, and was this copper's face red?

Bulky guns bulging from the hips of their civilian clothing when they stepped out into private life was one of the things Mansfield police officers frowned upon. Today this problem was solved. Each of the officers has been equipped with a snub-nosed 38-caliber revolver to carry when not in uniform. The guns—28 of them — were purchased from proceeds of the police dance last fall. They are the personal property of the officers.

SPECULATE ON NEW O.S.U. PREXY

West Mentioned In List of Possible Successors to Retiring Rightmire.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Educational circles buzzed with a fresh outburst of speculation today over the probable successor to Dr. George W. Rightmire, first Ohio State university alumnus to head his alma mater, who told the board of trustees that he wished to retire July 1, shortly before he becomes 70 years of age.

The former country school teacher who became president of the nation's sixth largest university, informed the board at a regular session yesterday:

"I have just completed 12 years in the presidency of the university and am aproaching the usual age of retirement from active service; accordingly I hereby most respectfully request the privilege of retiring, effective the first day of July, 1938."

The names of James Lewis Morrill, university vice president; Charles West, U. S. undersecretary of interior; Clarence Dykstra, president of the University of Wisconsin, and Theodore Tangeman, former Ohio director of commerce, have been mentioned at various times as probable successors to Dr. Rightmire.

Morrill now is the principal contact man for the university. He represents the institution at various functions and has been more active in meeting the public than has Dr. Rightmire in recent years.

FIRST ELIMINATION AUDITION IN TALENT HUNT SET FOR THURSDAY

The first elimination audition in the talent quest which is being conducted in Mansfield by Warner Brothers, the National Broadcasting company, and The News-Journal, will be staged at the Ohio theater Thursday night.

Private try-outs for the public audition have been set for 7 p. m. the same evening at the theater, instead of several days before as was originally announced.

Six acts already have been registered for Thursday's audition. The talent contest is open to any individual or act made up of a number of persons, either professional or non-professional. It is not necessary that the act be distinctly radio entertainment as the ultimate state winner will have a screen test as well as a radio broadcast.

There will be two more elimination auditions after this week, with each one on a Thursday night. The final audition at which the Mansfield winner will be selected will be held Thursday, April 7, and the winner will be a part of a troupe which will make a four-week tour of Ohio theaters.

The state winner will be chosen from this troupe and will go to New York City for three days, with all expenses paid, to have a try-out on the NBC network and at Warner Brothers studio.

Foes of Power Project Seek to Keep Administration From Controlling Quiz.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Foes of the Tennessee Valley authority planned today to seek a joint senate and house investigation of all phases of the New Deal's vast power and regional planning project.

They may introduce a joint resolution for such an inquiry in an attempt to defeat pending resolutions and to gain dominant positions on the proposed investigating committee. The plan will be opposed by administration leaders, who also seek a joint inquiry, but who are trying to keep the administration in control of an investigation that appears likely to furnish power political ammunition for the 1938 elections.

Meeting secretly last night, Sens. H. Styles Bridges, (R., N.H.), and William R. King, (D., Utah), and Reps. Bertrand H. Snell, (R., N.Y.), and Andrew J. May, (R., Ky.), decided upon a course of action to prevent administration control of any investigation.

Keep Plans Secret.

The conferees refused to discuss their plans, but it was learned that they had agreed to work for and seek strategic positions in a joint congressional investigation.

It also was understood that tentative agreement had been reached on composition of the proposed investigating committee. The resolution probably will call for five senators and five representatives to conduct the inquiry.

The resolution will be drafted along the lines of the 23 points incorporated in the original Bridges-King resolution for a senate investigation, and will propose a broad inquiry into the policies of the TVA as well as the recent disagreement among TVA directors.

Meanwhile, Senate Majority Leader Alben W Barkley (D. Ky.) announced that he planned to amend a pending resolution to provide for a joint investigation.

Barkley's plans were designed to keep administration leaders in control and to direct the inquiry along the lines of the resolution already proposed by Sen. George W. Norris, Ind. Neb. Such an inquiry would investigate activities of private utilities as well as internal troubles of the TVA.

BOY, 3, LOST

Hundreds Comb Dense Woods, Trail Clues of Blood, Hair.

LEBANON, Ky — (INS) — Hundreds of searchers beat through the wooded knob country near Riley today for traces of Ralph Wright, 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Wright, who disappeared Sunday while on a wood-chopping expedition with his brother, William, 13.

The only clue was some blood and hair found on a leaf a half mile from where the brother last saw the child. Authorities doubted they were left by the child, but worked from this point on the theory heavy rains may have washed away other similar traces.

William Wright told police he left the youngster standing in a clearing while he went to a clump of bushes 50 yards away, and that on his return Ralph was gone.

The Great Game of Politics

—By FRANK R. KENT

Trouble In Tennessee.

ONE OF the incidental phases of the TVA controversy, wholly aside from the deeper issues involved, is the effect upon the political career of Senator George L. Berry, of Tennessee. As things stand at the moment there seems fair prospect that it has been abruptly ended, though, in these matters, sometimes it is hard to tell.

At any rate, Berry is on a very hot spot politically. His sufferings undoubtedly are acute and he is getting as little sympathy from labor leaders, with whom he has affiliated for so many years, as from the business men whom he so frequently inveighed against in the 1936 campaign, when, holding the dual posts of federal co-ordinator of industry and head of the so-called Labor's Nonpartisan league, statements gushed from him like water from a fountain.

MR. BERRY'S trouble centers around his claim for more than $5,000,000 compensation from the government for lands flooded by the TVA. In the court proceedings last December, Chairman A. E. Morgan of the TVA, declared his belief that the senator and his associates had purchased the mineral and marble leases in the Norris area with "intent to defraud the government." This was hotly denied by Berry but two weeks ago a three-member federal commission named by Federal Judge Taylor to investigate unanimously declared the Berry lease holdings, valued by Berry at "more than $5,000,000" were entirely worthless. "We are," the commission declared, "unable to conclude from the record and the physical facts that the properties are of value."

CLEARLY this report, together with the TVA investigation, which, whether made by congress or by the federal trade commission, is sure to further publicize the facts about the Berry claim, makes the question of his candidacy to succeed himself this fall particularly interesting. Until this marble business came out, it had been assumed that the senator would be renominated. Now no one can tell. If he does not run it will seem that he has been driven out of politics by the marble incident. On the other hands, if he seeks "vindication" at the hands of the voters, in the primaries and fails, as he easily may do, it will be worse than if he had just faded out of the picture. That, if he does not retire, he will have opposition has been assured by the commission report and the Morgan charges.

SHOULD BERRY seek his "vindication" there will be great interest in the attitude toward him of two factors—the Roosevelt administration, for which he has been a recognized spokesman and a devoted follower; second, the labor leaders with whom he has trained and of whom he was supposed to be one. So far as the White House is concerned, though, Berry owed his appointment as senator last year largely to the Roosevelt influence, it isn't easy to see how Mr. Roosevelt could indorse him as he has, for instance, Senator Barkley, in Kentucky, and Senator Pepper, in Florida.

IT IS true Senator Berry voted for the court-packing bill and certainly was the most articulate of the Roosevelt labor supporters in 1936. It is true, too, that he is as ardent a New Dealer as there is and that no one has more loudly denounced the "greedy rich" than he. However, unless he can get a clean bill of health to refute the Morgan allegation of intent to defraud and the committee's report on the worthlessness of his claim, the White House would have a bad time explaining why it wanted Berry back. The best judgment is that if Berry runs, Tennessee will be one state in which the president will regard the primaries as none of his business. In other words, he will abandon the unhappy Major Berry to his fate just as he already has abandoned the unfortunate Senator Dieterich to his, in Illinois.

* * *

ON THE labor side there had been a rift between Major Berry and the CIO leaders before his marble leases became known. John L. Lewis ceased to love him very shortly after he got into the senate, and the disposition among labor leaders generally is to feel that Berry, the first recognized organized labor leader to become a member of the senate, has not reflected great credit on the labor cause. In fact, some of them feel more than a little resentful about the whole business. Of course, should the major run and get "vindicated" without aid either from the White House or his fellow-labor leaders, returning to the senate with what ex-Senator Swanson used to call a "six-year pulse," he would be in position to be very much more independent next session than he is this. At present, quite naturally, he is much subdued.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—If you're a movie star you needn't know enough to come in out of the rain. That's all taken care of.

Very efficiently, too. And, if you're a movie star, entirely painlessly. If, however, you're not a star but merely one who works behind the scenes in pictures, rain is a decided pain.

The rain, just as imperiously as though it were a finger dialing numbers, sets telephones jingling all over Hollywood, Burbank and Culver City. Production managers call unit managers of production, and these gentlemen begin calling others.

A midnight rain over Burbank, specifically, brings these results:

Almost certainly, the first man it will awaken is Tenny Wright, production manager at Warner's, probably because all production managers are light sleepers when they sleep at all. At the first pitter-patter Tenny Wright reaches for his bedside telephone and dials.

"Hear the rain?" he asks the sleepy answering voice.

"Uh-huh," is the reply. "I'll put in the early calls. Goodnight."

Wright makes two more similar calls and then, probably, puts on his robe and slippers and goes out to make sure his pigeons are well protected. Pigeons are his hobby. We now leave him with his pigeons and carry on from there.

The unit managers—those he has telephoned—get to work. The rain was not entirely unexpected. Rain in Hollywood and vicinity usually gives warning. If not, the weather man does. Already, "cover sets" have been arranged for all picture shooting. A "cover set" is one to which the company can retire if the weather forbids proceeding outdoors.

Still, shifting from an exterior to an interior set may require different actors. For inside scenes, an entirely different cast may be needed. The unit manager has to call these people, who may have planned to sleep late, and notify them to be in make-up not later than 8 o'clock.

Property men—who sleep with ears alert to rain, anyway—likewise are awakened by the unit manager. They have to get to the studio hours before their usual time, to make sure that all necessary "props" are on hand for the "cover set."

Transportation department drivers, all set to report at 6 a. m. to take cast and crew of "Gold Diggers in Paris" on location, are awakened to be told they needn't bother. Make-up men and hairdressers and wardrobe women are called and instructions changed.

The stars, however, can sleep on as usual. They get to the studio on time, and they find that they've already been taken in out of the rain.

RANDOM SHOTS

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

THIS talk about the Tygers being a "hot" team in the district tournament in Sandusky is all poppycock.

The Mansfield high school cagers played the same brand of ball it exhibited during the regular season.

The Tygers were merely underrated by partisan upstate experts, who judged the tournament rivals on games won and lost, not on the strength of their opposition.

Mansfield's record failed to compare with those of Bellevue and Tiffin Columbian, but neither team played any opponents worth mentioning.

The Tygers took on as many tough ones as their schedule would permit, and while they were absorbing their share of whipping, they developed into a rather dangerous unit.

Coach Russ Murphy's cagers may not cut much of a figure in the state elimination this week, but teams with poorer records have advanced to Columbus.

Personally, we believe the Tygers will do all right by themselves in Columbus.

For one thing, the home town boys are not subject to jitters. This is the kind of a ball club that is usually dangerous in tournaments of this type.

Brilliant season records are seldom extended into state championships.

Tygers, Bulldogs in Different Brackets.

THE only team in the state tournament this year that the Tygers have met is Canton McKinley, and there is no chance of the two clubs meeting at Columbus unless both reach the finals. The Tygers and Bulldogs are in different brackets.

The Canton club ,which handed the Tygers their worst defeat of the season, 24 to 17, is one of the prominent pre-tournament favorites, and meets Toledo Woodward in a first round tussle.

McKinley will meet either Akron East or Hamilton in the second round if it gets past the Toledoans.

If the Tygers can eliminate Roger Bacon of Cincinnati, their second round foe will be either Newark or Youngstown East.

Should it happen that Mansfield and Newark advance, it will mark the third time that the Licking county cagers have met a north central Ohio team in tournament play. Newark defeated Mt. Vernon and Marion at Delaware last week.

Akron St. Vincent, Marietta, Bridgeport and Bowling Green are other teams in Mansfield's bracket.

N. C. O. Teams Fare Well in Tournaments.

WHILE Mansfield is the only north central Ohio school to advance to the state finals this year, a number of neighboring schools fared well in district eliminations.

Marion and Galion reached the finals at Delaware and Findlay, respectively, and the Presidents were nosed out of the championship by the margin of a point by Newark, which was forced to go into an overtime period to advance at the expense of Mt. Vernon in a semi-final tilt.

Ashland, like Mt. Vernon, also got as far as the semi-finals, and, offered a break or two, the A's might have gone right into the Sandusky finals.

Engage Second Division Foes

Leaders Expected to Hold Places Wednesday.

With the majority of the leaders meeting second division foes, no radical changes are anticipated in the Class A Church league standings Wednesday when the teams return to action at the Y. M. C. A.

The First Lutherans, who lead First M. E. by a game, meet St. Pauls at 8:30, while the Methodists tackle St. Johns in the opener at 7:00.

Mayflower, which is tied with Episcopal for third place, faces one of the tougher tests in Temple Emanuel in the 7:45 game. Episcopal meets Central M. E. at 9:45 and Park Avenue Baptist engages United Presbyterian in the last game.

First Lutheran and Park Avenue Baptist, tied for first place in the Class B league, meet South Main and First Presbyterian, respectively, at the Y. M. C. A. tonight. Central M. E. meets First Christian. First M. E. tackles B'Nai Jacob and St. Johns faces Mayflower in the other Class B games tonight.

Cagers Offer Three-Star Show In Tyger Gym Tonight

City League Teams Meet Bliss College, Galion, Coaches on Carnival Card.

A THREE-STAR basketball attraction is on schedule for Mansfield devotees of the indoor sport at the Senior high school tonight.

It will be presented by the City Class A league in an attempt to raise finances to wipe out a deficit incurred during the regular season.

Three attractive games are on the program, with the opener scheduled at 7 p. m.

Westies Open Bill.

The Westinghouse Electrics will meet a team composed of Richland county high school coaches in the initial tilt. The second game pits the Elks against the touted Bliss college clubs of Columbus, and the undefeated Yuncker Sports engage the Globe Clothiers of Galion in the final game.

The admission price for these games is only 10 cents, and one of the largest crowds to pack into the Tygers' lair this winter is expected by officials of the circuit, who have conducted a ticket campaign to assure the success of the carnival.

All of the games promise to be interesting affairs, with the Yuncker-Galion tilt probably holding the most interest.

The Sports, who have already won two round championships in the league this season, defeated the Galion club by a few points with a rally earlier in the season, and the visitors should be just as difficult to handle tonight.

The lineup of the Galion club includes Johnny Burnison and Merle Hutson, former Heidelberg stars.

The Sports will attempt to extend their winning streak to 15 games in this contest, which will get under way at approximately 9 p. m.

Return With Vets.

Bliss college's cagers stole the show in a similar court carnival staged here last year, and returns tonight with an all-veteran lineup.

The Elks, one of the stronger clubs in the City league, boast of such outstanding hoopsters as Russ Hoff, Noel Morgan, Freddy Lewis and Gene Brandon.

The Westies also are expected to find their foe troublesome. The coaches' lineup includes a number of former college stars, and the team has compiled a fairly decent record in competition with faculty and amateur quintets.

PACKS BEST OFFENSIVE RECORD IN STATE MEET

Youngstown East Averaged 39 Points Per Game; Mansfield Also Sports Good Mark.

By FRITZ HOWELL, Associated Press Sports Writer.

YOUNGSTOWN EAST stood out today as the best offensive Class A entrant in the Ohio high school basketball tournament scheduled at the state fairground coliseum Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Six of the 16 teams in the annual classic barged through their pre-tourney seasons at better than a point-a-minute clip, East topping the section with an average of 39 points.

Te high-scoring team also boasted a closely-knit defense, along with its point-making proclivities, leading its division in the average of margin over opponents. Youngstown outscored its foes by 15.3 points per game.

Best Defensively.

Xenia's fine quintet, winner of 18 of 20 games, led the Class A teams defensively, allowing but 20.3 per tilt, Hamilton's defending champions finishing second with 20.9. Akron St. Vincent, which won 10 and lost the same number, averaged 20.3 on offense and allowed the foe 23.0—the only entrant in the tournament to finish on the short end of the season's scoring fight.

Here are the won-lost records of the Class A entrants, their offensive and defensive averages. The teams are paired as they will meet in the first round games Thursday, at the fairground coliseum.

TRENDS POINT UPWARD AFTER LIGHT SELLING

Foreign Securities Markets Reflect Further Confusion Over German Coup.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Stock market trends pointed upward today after light profit selling in early proceedings.

Steels, rubbers, motors, aircrafts and a few specialties were in favor.

Foreign securities markets weakened, reflecting further confusion over the latest German coup in Austria and fears of other political upsets. European monies were again lower, as overseas capital sought refuge in dollars.

Bonds and commodities were mixed.

While market analysts saw signs of improvement in some lines of industry, it was noted building construction activities for February showed another drop from the corresponding period a year ago.

The F. W. Dodge Corp. estimated engineering contracts awarded last month were off 37 per cent from the 1937 month. In January the decline was 20 per cent.

On the side of steel stocks were reports structural steel specifications were being placed in much larger volume, with automobile makers a bit more liberal in placing orders.

SEEKS JOBS TO LESSEN BURDEN

County Officials In Capital to Try to Set Up Work Program In Area.

County officials from central Ohio, including three from Richland county, met with state WPA officials in Columbus today to map a work relief program to lighten the direct relief burden in the central counties of the state.

Attending the meeting from Mansfield were Deputy County Engineer Walter Rusk and C. L. Mitchell and Guy Stewart, county commissioners. Although invited to attend the session, County Engineer Howard C. Sword was unable to go because of the illness of his mother.

The Richland county representatives were expected to urge the approval of a ditch construction and creek-dredging program here this spring to provide work for about 200 men during the spring and early summer.

Preliminary plans for the projects here already have been submitted to the state WPA office.

Funds for the new projects expected to be started in the state this spring will come from a $12,240,000 allocation made by congress last week. Plans for the revived WPA program call for 180,000 workers on state projects this month.

TALKS ON CRISIS

Ashland Professor Addresses St. John's Brotherhood.

Dr. Raymond Bixler, professor of history at Ashland college, addressed members of the Brotherhood of St. John's Evangelical church at their "open house" meeting last night in the church parlors.

Dr. Bixler spoke on "The European Situation," tracing factors of economic and political life in Europe, which have led to the present tense and menacing position. He maintained that for many countries, being compelled to live in abject poverty, without sufficient natural resources at home, the need for foreign possessions was a life and death matter, and that often as national policy, war was preferred to peace by these people, because peaceful economic development and prosperity was impossible.

Reports were given by Philip Smith on the church Boy Scout troop, and John Klinger reported on the brotherhood chorus and its plans for the future. Two new members were received into the organization.

The next meeting will be a "family night" meeting, Monday, April 11.

NEW CALL SEEN

Duffy Action In Parole Probe by Jury Here Awaited.

Possibility that the Richland county special parole grand jury might be reconvened was seen today in dispatches from Columbus.

Attorney General Herbert S. Duffy recalled the Franklin county grand jury, which has been in recess, to hear Ohio Pen Warden James C. Woodard and prepare a final report.

International News Service quoted Duffy as saying the Richland county grand jury, which was in session three weeks in January and February, might be reconvened after the Franklin county grand jury completes its work.

Both juries were seeking evidence of parole irregularities. Failure of the legislature to appropriate funds has forced Duffy to call recesses.

FIND BODY OF ARMY ENGINEER

Fishermen Use Hooks to Locate TVA Project Official.

WHEELER DAM, Ala.—(AP)—Trotline fishermen, working with improvised grappling hooks last night located the body of Col. Charles E. Perry in the Tennessee river below Joe Wheeler dam.

A TVA crew of volunteer searchers had sought the district army engineer for seven hours after he failed to return from inspecting the dam navigation lock.

Colonel Perry had been with the army engineering corps about 25 years.

Probes State Liquor Hauling Contract; Davey Defends Highway Department.

part of his address to charges made by Harry Sparks, former highway department engineer, who told the senate committee that the state lost $2,000,000 through collusive bidding by contractors who were members of the Hot-Mixed Bituminous Industries, Inc.

Sparks' position was abolished shortly after he testified, but Governor Davey said:

"If he can prove his charges, I will take him back and give him a handsome promotion as a reward for having rendered the public a great service, even though it was done through dirty political channels and from base partisan motives."

To this Sparks replied at his home:

"How could I do more to prove the charges? The records are available and I testified to them under oath."

The governor said the controversial "hot mix" highway program "is saving for the people of Ohio hundreds of millions of dollars of their investment by resurfacing old pavements which otherwise would have to be replaced completely."

DELAYED DAY

Petit Jury Convenes, $775 Suit First on Docket.

Its session delayed one day when a $10,000 damage case was continued, the Richland county petit jury convened this morning to hear a $775 judgment suit. The jury is scheduled to hear three other cases this week.

A suit seeking damages for false arrest was continued indefinitely yesterday due to the illness of Mrs. Mae Ralston, Mansfield, defendant in the case. The continuance was granted on the request of Atty. A. S. Beach, counsel for Mrs. Ralston.

The action, filed by Charles E. Davis, Sharon township, seeks $10,000 damages for an alleged false arrest last July when Davis was held in the city jail for 22 hours on a charge of assault.

In the case heard by the jury today, Mrs. Jeannette Young, Mansfield, asks $775 judgment on a note against the estate of the late Charles E. Reynolds. E. P. Robinson, administrator of the estate, is defendant. Mrs. Young is represented by Atty. George W. Biddle and Robinson by Attys. Beam and Beam.

JURORS STUDY RANSOM TEXTS

State Presses Death Demand for Ross Kidnaper, Killer.

CHICAGO—(AP)—The text of five ransom notes and the testimony of two women served today as the preliminary legal framework which federal prosecutors hoped would support a demand that John Henry Seadlund be put to death for kidnaping.

Seadlund has pleaded guilty to the $50,000 ransom kidnaping of Charles S. Ross, 72, retired Chicago manufacturer who was slain while a prisoner.

Federal law provides that the death penalty must be imposed by a jury.

HITLER'S SEVEN SENTENCES TURN AUSTRIA GERMAN

Fuehrer Speaks But Briefly In Formal Address on Union of Two Countries.

times of the past, storms of the east have broken on the border of the old eastern outpost."

It was wondered if this were another reference to "drang nach osten"—march to the east.

While Hitler spoke European maps were displayed showing Germany and Austria as one nation in dark red. Czechoslovakia was shown with a broken line. Crowds looking at the maps in store windows cheered his unofficial prediction involving the German-Austrian neighbor of Czechoslovakia.

The completeness of the union of the two German-speaking countries was emphasized when Joachim Von Ribbentrop, German foreign minister, took over Austrian foreign affairs. Foreign Minister Wolf greeted Ribbentrop with: "As the last Austrian minister of foreign affairs I salute you. I put the functions of my office in your hands. Austria has only one fatherland and that is Germany."

Ribbentrop immediately assumed office.

Introduces Hitler.

Seyss-Inquart introduced his leader to the madly excited throngs thus:

"I formally report the legal completion of Austrian-German anschluss (union). Austria has come home. We greet the leader of a new Eternal Germany. My leader, wherever the way leads, we follow!"

Hitler then spoke thus.

"Sixty-eight million Germans," I assure you this country is Germany, and nobody can be better than Germany.

"It will be our immediate duty to work hard to solve economic problems and make this land a fortress of national socialism."

"I cannot start this task without thinking of and acclaiming national socialist members of the Austrian government.

"I thank the Austrian governor, Seyss-Inquart, and the many idealists who labored with him. It shows the strength of Germans increased the more pressure is put on them.

"These years of suffering have shown me the worth of the Austrian people. In this hour as fuehrer and chancellor I can report to the German nation:

"I report to German history the incorporation of my native land into the German reich."

Austria's new chancellor chose as his forum the Heldenplatz, or Heroes' Square.

'Hail Victory.'

The fuehrer's column of autos drove slowly from his hotel the four blocks to the square.

Everyone of the thousands lining the streets shouted "Sieg Heil" (Hail Victory) continuously.

One thousand Prussian policemen were imported to handle street crowds.

How many troops Hitler sent here was kept secret, but every quarter of Austria was filled with them. Inversely, Hitler sent Austrian soldiers to Germany for training.

Charges against fearful Jews were appearing almost hourly. Official by official, all Jewish and half-Jewish judges and state attorneys were removed from office.

No Jew henceforth can become a member of the bar.

Arrest 10 Jews at Linz.

Police announced the arrest of ten Jews at Linz for actions "harmful to the nation."

How many Jews and political enemies of the Nazis had been arrested and otherwise disposed of was impossible to estimate.

One newspaper, Der Weiner Tag, did not appear today. It had favored Schuschnigg's policy of independence and friendship with Czechoslovakia.

Schuschnigg himself remained under arrest at his palace apartment. The resigned President Miklas was confined to his home.

Britain Seeks to Match Nazi Arms.

LONDON—Prime Minister Chamberlain was determined today to match the armed might of Adolf Hitler before publicly pledging Britain to support Czechoslovakia against German aggression.

There were indications that Britain privately had told Germany she might be compelled to act if Chancellor Hitler sought to bring the German minority in Czechoslovakia into the German nation, as without opposition he absorbed Austria.

Publicly, however, Chamberlain refrained yesterday in his address to the house of commons from any guarantee of aid to Czechoslovakia.

Nevertheless, the British ambassador, Sir Neville Henderson, told Field Marshal Goering in Berlin, diplomatic informants said, that Britain considered "binding" his friendly assurances to Czechoslovakia on Saturday.

Chamberlain today was busy endeavoring to win opposition parties to support tremendous defenses, which eventually might even include compulsory military service for all capable of fighting.

Britain's present five-year defense program, in its second year, is to cost $7,500,000,000, but the figure may be raised to $10,000,000,000.

Exactly what form of action Britain would undertake in the event of a German push into Czechoslovakia was not apparent today.

The French government has asked for a definite promise of British armed support, and France herself has renewed pledges to fight for Czechoslovakia.

Pope Pius Hits 'Menacing Forces.'

VATICAN CITY—(INS)—In a thinly-veiled attack on aggression, Pope Pius today pledged the Catholic church to a never-ending fight to halt the "forces which menace every nation and all peoples."

The pontiff's remarks were made to Bernard De Lescaille, new Belgian ambassador to the Holy See, when the latter presented his credentials here.

In presenting himself to the pontiff, the new envoy said:

"Belgium confirms her unalterable relations with the Vatican as a free independent state which one day risked her very existence to halt an invader."

De Lescaille assured the pope Belgium is ready to risk her life again "to maintain the high moral standards which constitute humanity's greatest heritage."

Diplomats Flood Hull With Anxious Queries.

WASHINGTON—(INS)—The diplomats of an uneasy world beat a path to the state department today, to consult with Secretary Cordell Hull and hear him say America is withholding any official reaction to Adolf Hitler's Austrian conquest.

Hardly a moment passed but some foreign government's representative paced the floor of the diplomatic reception room, waiting his turn to see Hull or Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles Tall, athletic British Ambassador Sir Ronald Lindsay hasn't missed a day since Hitler's amazing strike into Austria Businesslike Vladimir Hurban, minister for little Czechoslovakia, called to advise that his government will fight if Germany attempts to walk in Beaming Ambassador Hans Dieckhoff, of Germany, stopped in to advise Hull of the successive steps leading to German absorption of Austria

Only Minister Edgar L. G Prochnik, of Austria, stays at home, calmly awaiting orders, a minister without a country He has nothing to tell Secretary Hull, for the terse orders that have come from the German conquerors of his native land tell him little of what goes on. Only, said these orders advise all consuls that Germany has taken over

It's Odd

But It's Science.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Wonder what scientist thinks about?

As an example, take Irving Langmuir, Nobel prize winner in chemistry, standing at the rail of a trans-Atlantic liner.

He wonders what holds together the seaweed floating on the ocean's surface. He notices the weed floats in windrows, long streaks pointing in the direction of the wind.

Langmuir thinks this must mean a queer action is going on in the water, under the push of the wind. He thinks water is probably sucking downward in the windrow lanes. If so, it must be rising between lanes.

Those were Langmuir's thoughts 10 years ago He has verified them in experiments at Lake George, New York. The water does flow downward, at two to three centimeters a second It does not flow more than 15 to 20 feet as a rule. Then it spreads and rises in the areas between the streaks

Dr Langmuir learned this by use of oil, streaks of leaves, glowing chemicals, and white cords.

The rising and falling water travels slowly forward with a corkscrew motion

DUCE'S STUDENT NOW TEACHER IN DICTATORSHIPS

Hitler, Schooled by Mussolini, Clothes Himself as Master, Writer Declares.

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(AP Foreign Affairs Writer)

NEW YORK—Mussolini must be filled with strange emotions as that martial song "Deutschland Uber Alles" rolls down the mountains to him from Austria through the Brenner Pass—Alpine gateway to Italy—in the unmistakable voice of Adolf Hitler

It isn't so long ago that Il Duce, father of Fascism, dandled the precocious Hitler on his knee, in a manner of speaking, and taught the former corporal the ABC's of dictatorship. Now the disciple has clothed himself in the uniform of the master.

Mussolini has nodded acquiescence and shrugged his shoulders at Hitler's annexation of Austria—the little nation which up to a couple of years ago Il Duce shielded from Germany with the military forces of Italy. The approval is a matter of form, however, and not of the heart.

The Italian dictator cannot but view with apprehension the successes of his rival—an ally only by force of circumstances—as the latter proceeds apace with his ambition to create the greatest power in Europe.

Italian Prestige Totters.

Hitler's progress already has struck at Italian prestige in central and southeastern Europe And the projected Germanic confederation easily might provide a military menace to the Italy of the future.

The two dictators were driven into a pact for mutual assistance by expediency. There is little in common between Italy and Germany under normal circumstances. From that standpoint the Rome-Berlin axis is doomed to die.

Mussolini wanted Hitler's moral and material support as Italy defied the League of Nations and invaded Ethiopia. Il Duce also was challenging England's domination of the Mediterranean Italo-German unofficial intervention in the Spanish civil war is generally held in the chancelleries of the world to figure in Mussolini's Mediterranean plans.

Hitler was anxious to get ahead with his scheme for expansion eastward into Austria, Czechoslovakia, and reportedly on to the fat field of the Russian Ukraine Mussolini was hindering this by his belligerent hands-off policy in regard to Austria.

Mussolini went into action first and Hitler kept his bond Berlin stood back of Rome in the conquest of Ethiopia and participated rather unwillingly but loyally in the Spanish show In return for all this, Il Duce withdrew his protection from Austria and signalled der fuehrer to go ahead

Mussolini, sitting tight and saying little cannot be happy about the Hitlerian successes, but he finds himself in a fine spot to draw concessions from France and England, should he so desire

Meanwhile Hitler has continued to operate with a "rainbow round his shoulders" and is pushing his luck for all it is worth.

MORE RAIN DUE

Mercury Skids to 28 in Night; Hits 42 at Noon.

Although a drop in temperature to four degrees below freezing ended two days of steady rain and a flood threat last night, more rain is forecast for tomorrow.

Rainfall in Mansfield from Sunday morning to last night measured 1.46 inches and only the lower temperature prevented streams from flooding roads in the southern part of the county, highway officials said.

Streams which overflowed their banks closed four state highways in the eastern part of the state yesterday and another near Xenia in southwestern Ohio, the Associated Press said.

The temperature in Mansfield climbed to 42 degrees at noon today and a further rise was predicted for Wednesday when rain will again be followed by colder weather.

CHAPTER XVIII

And who had turned off the floodlights at La Luz?

Could the switch, perhaps hastily thrown, have fallen down. No, he recalled that it was a so-called knife-switch, a blade with a handle, fitting into a slot. And the blade was brought downward to establish contact. So it could not have moved itself.

Some one must have cut off the lights.

Well, considering how close to the house Red Vasquez and some of his men had been when they seized him, probably one of them had managed to sneak in and throw the switch.

Perhaps Vasquez himself had been inside the house. The trees and shrubbery about the hacienda might have enabled him to do this. And certainly he would have risked it—and he only, probably to cut off those lights which were blinding his followers and making them vivid targets for the defenders of La Luz.

The American had thus been with his uneasy thoughts for not more than a quarter of an hour when footsteps approached the door and the voice of Red Vasquez ordered the guard to unlock it. Vasquez entered.

Close upon the heels of Vasquez came two of his men, bearing ropes and a lantern.

"Tie him up, wrists and ankles, securely," ordered the Mexican.

That Vasquez was in a fury was apparent. In such a fury that he had to talk.

"So your little friend Jose Verdugo thinks he has put one over on me, eh?"

"What are you talking about?" Murray demanded as the ropes were tied on him. There was no use struggling. Three to one—and Vasquez with a pistol in his hand.

"I mean that that cursed Jose came here with us in one of the trucks. Smart boy! But not smart enough. One of my men, coming from Tijuana, passed him, recognized him. I can guess the rest. Well, so much the worse for you, hombre. All ready? All right, carry him out and throw him in the back of my car."

Murray was picked up by the two men, carried out, roughly tumbled into the car.

"You all have your orders," Vasquez said to the men standing about. "Obey them." He turned to the man in the driver's seat, Gregorio of the One Ear. "Let's go."

The car shot into the road and headed for Tijuana.

They traveled fast and in 20 minutes drew up before a dark isolated ranch house a short distance east of the town.

Gregorio braked the car, got out and knocked thrice upon the door.

In a moment it was opened a few inches and a man spoke.

Gregorio replied, returned to the car and he and Vasquez lifted Murray out and carried him into the house. Tossed him into a corner.

"Now," Vasquez snarled," Let's see if your friends can find you."

He was at the doorway when he spoke again, turning.

"And as for the American girl you're looking for—Miss Castle, I believe—I do not think that you will find her. Nor that it will do you any good if you do."

"Oh, I know," Vasquez laughed, but there was a snarl in the laughter, "I know all about it. I know that the girl is rich now. That her father found a gold mine. And died. Died of a bullet," he jibed, "while alone with you and your father. Very unfortunate—for him!"

Vasquez went out then, locking the door behind him, and leaving Murray Kilbourne stupefied by the things he had said, by what he had suggested.

But the shock of the suggestion—that he and his father had murdered Tom Castle to secure full possession of the mine—soon passed away. It was too ridiculous to last. However, the remainder of Red Vasquez's words kept repeating themselves, hammering in his head. "As for the American girl—Miss Castle, I believe—I do not think you will find her. Nor that it will do you any good if you do."

How had Red Vasquez come to know of his search? Who had talked too much? Or who had betrayed him?

Murray Kilbourne considered this question.

Who, in the first place, knew of his search for Sue Castle?

He counted them up.

His father.

Shane O'Hara and Rose, of Soledad. Safe beyond question.

Jose Verdugo.

But Jose was neither knave nor chatterer. Impossible.

The folks at Rancho La Luz? Don Vicente? Inconceivable that the old caballero would give one a hint of the matter.

The Senorita Mercedes?

To Murray's recollection came the girl's angry words: "I do not want to see her. Ever."

Was it possible that Mercedes had been indiscreet?

And if so, to whom?

* * *

There was nobody at the Rancho La Ruz to be indiscreet to, except her father. And Don Ponce Robles. But this seemed incredible. Mercedes certainly wouldn't talk to a stranger about what were really family affairs.

But mightn't she? Mightn't Don Ponce have become something closer than a stranger?

At last Murray put the thought away from him. Mercedes, he told himself, had always been a good sport. She wasn't the kind to throw a monkey-wrench into the machinery out of spite. Nor, so far as he could perceive, did she have any reason for spite, either against him or the missing Sue Castle.

Who else was there?

Yes, there was the writer of the notes, the giver of warnings. The girl who had written to Tom Castle about his daughter; who had seemed to know of Murray's movements. Dolores or Carmen. One or the other. And perhaps this girl was Sue Castle herself.

He considered this for a long time. Decided that if one of these girls was Sue, she would be the last to reveal the secret of his search, as the cause of it. And if it was the other girl, obviously Sue's friend, then she would be even more careful.

Was there any one else?

Suddenly he recalled the mysterious Pablo Sanchez. The man who had given him various warnings. Who seemed to know as much about his business as he himself did.

Who was Pablo? Or what was Pablo? And what was his game?

It was near daylight before Murray reached the conclusion that he might as well spend his time thinking about astronomy. He had gotten nowhere. And his head ached. Wherefore he turned his attention to the ropes that bound him.

And with them he got just as far, and no further, than he had with his thinking.

When, at dawn, the rescuing party from La Luz swept up to the old Osuna abode, guns in hand, a score strong, it found only a deserted house. But tracks all about the place testified to the truth of Jose's story.

A council of war was held between Don Vincente, Mercedes, Don Ponce Robles and Jose.

Mercedes was for getting out the rurales—the mounted country police — and, if necessary, the American army.

"But we must consider carefully the safety of Don Murray," Don Ponce pointed out. "This Vasquez, he is a bad hombre. He has killed so many men that one more—" he shrugged.

"That is true, Mercedes," assented Don Vicente. "The fact that Vasquez did not kill Murray last night argues that he does not intend to kill him. Unless forced to do so. We must move carefully. I—I don't know what to do."

"No doubt we will hear from Vasquez," offered Don Ponce. "As to his intentions—or—or desires. Perhaps he thinks of a ransom for Don Murray."

"Possible," said Don Vicente. "Still—what do you think, Jese?"

Jose scratched his nose.

"W'at I theenk," he said, "I dunno." He looked at Don Ponce reflectively. "I theenk maybe thees Don Ponce ees right an' that Vasquez maybee keel Don Murray eef we are not—w'at you say?—look at hees step. And I theenk too that maybee that Vasquez feller he weel want money for Don Murray. Or sometheeng. She ees funnee beesness."

"But must we sit around and wait, while Murray is in danger?" flared Mercedes. "Why not get the police on the job?"

"Well, senorita," answered Jose, "me I dunno. But I theenk that eef the police get on thee job, Vasquez weel know it before the police do. An' w'en thee police find Don Murray, he weel be veree dead and Vasquez weel be in Brazeel or somew'ere. And—w'ere you theenk Don Murray ees, anyhow?"

That was a poser. Where was Don Murray?

"Maybee thees Vasquez he take heem to Mexicali or Chihuahua, I dunno. Seguro he no leave heem laying around w'ere people can see heem."

"That's true," assented Don Vicente. "We haven't any idea where he may be."

"I theenk the best theeng to do," offered Jose, "ees to see eef we can find that Vasquez. Eef he ees steel in Tijuana or not. I theenk we weel hear from heem. But I theenk eet would be good beezness to see w'at she ees happening in Tijuana. Maybee Vasquez ees steel there. In w'eech case—" Jose paused to scratch his nose again, and stare at Don Ponce. "Een w'eech case, maybee we could make thee beezness weeth heem. W'at you theenk, Don Ponce?"

Don Ponce Robles consideerd the matter.

"I believe you are right, Jose," he said then. "Yes. We—some of us—should go to Tijuana and see if we can get in touch with Vasquez. I—I will be very glad to go."

"Me, too," said Jose. "Oh, veree damn glad. I weel go weeth you, Don Ponce, and we weel find Vasquez, huh?" w'at you theenk of that, Don Vicente?"

"Seems the only thing we can do," assented the old caballero, nodding. "So—Mercedes and I and the others will return to La Ruz and wait for a report."

"Let's go, then," said Jose, turning his horse and looking at Don Ponce. "Vamenos. Adios, Don Vicente. Adios, Senorita." He removed his hat and bowed. Then galloped off with Don Ponce following, after he, too, had said adios.

Side by side, their followers stringing along behind, Don Vicente and Mercedes began the return to Rancho La Luz, while side by side, Jose and Don Ponce Robles rode toward Tijuana.

Reaching the town, Jose reined in.

"With your permission," he said in Spanish, "I will leave you here. I have one I wish to see. No doubt you also have friends you desire to consult. I will meet you at noon, let us say, at the Cafe Porfirio Diaz. Is that satisfactory, Don Ponce?"

"Perfectly," agreed Don Ponce, and proceeded up the street, while Jose turned left. In a few blocks he halted, tied his horse to a tree, and made his way to the Cafe Mexico City. He had an idea.

"I think," he told himself in Spanish, "that we have been talking one thing and thinking another. It does not make sense for Vasquez to desire to kill Don Murray one day and not kill him the next—unless there is is a good reason. Ransom would not be a good reason. Because then the United tSates would send a radio to the President of Mexico; the United States would not monkey with the mayor of Tijuana or the governor of Baja California. No. It would go straight to headquarters. And I do not think that the President of Mexico would be afraid of Vasquez."

He stopped to light a fresh cigarette. Continued his monologue to himself:

"If Vasquez killed Don Murray, he would always have an excuse of some sort, and that would be different. But to hold an American citizen for ransom. Today, and in Tijuana! Don Ponce Robles should know better than this. These are not the days of old Pancho Villa. And this is not Chihuahua. No. I think that what does make sense is this: Vasquez has found out what Don Murray is here for. How, I don't know, unless the senorita at La Luz has babbled, which is probable. She is in love with Don Murray, and so she would not enjoy having him being a hero to another woman. No. However . . . if Vasquez had found out what Don Murray was here for, if he had found out that one of these two girls was Miss Castle an heiress to a big fortune . . . and I myself think that Dolores is Miss Castle . . . then instead of killing Don Murray he would try to use him. For what? Hah!"

What the world needs is less political ideology and more milk and spinach.

Our last frontier is gone. Explorers who go west now only explore Hollywood.

We think we have political troubles, but France has 20 changes of government while we have one.

Spring Cleaning for Furnaces.

NOW is the time to use your good common sense to avoid burning your home. Run your furnace so it will keep you warm, but not burn you up!

This is the warning given by a fire prevention engineer, who says that the way you operate your heating plant at the end of winter, after months of hard use, may decide whether you will have your house a week from now—or a blackened ruin instead.

As the National Board of Fire Underwriters points out, "Cold weather brings an increase of fires every year. Homes are burned, people are maimed for life and others die in agony as the fire losses mount higher.

"Don't force your furnace or stove. If you can't get enough warmth, call in a heating expert. Also call him if you find any broken parts or other defects such as holes in the smoke-pipe, or a dirty or defective chimney."

You know what would happen to your car if you neglected to have it properly lubricated, and necessary repairs made. Your furnace is in the same category. It can't operate efficiently and safely without periodic expert attention and cleaning.

The use of common sense will save lives and property from destruction by fire now.

Tears—All for Joy?

A UNITED STATES CORRESPONDENT, witnessing the greeting given Adolf Hitler in Vienna yesterday, reports that he was visibly overcome by the warmth of his welcome, and that many of the thousands in the street below his hotel balcony were weeping.

Tears of joy, of course.

Elsewhere in Austria, not in the streets waving Swastika banners, but behind closed doors, other people were crying. They were the people who knew that the shouting and tumult meant that so long as Adolf Hitler ruled Austria they will live a life of the strictest regulation and regimentation, without liberty of word or movement—almost without liberty of thought.

Austria, before Hitler, may have been far from perfect. But now—who can tell whether the tears of despair may not be more prophetic than those of joy?

Not Dead Yet.

IT SEEMS that some of the things uncovered by the senate's graft-hunting committee didn't die, although the committee did, chiefly through the administrations of Gov. Davey's well-trained lower house.

A Columbus taxpayer files suit to recover for the state for some six million dollars from the Ohio paving contractors who are members of the "hot mix" association, alleging that they overcharged the state that much on contracts awarded them.

On the heels of that, Gov. Davey, who spent most of his time when the committee was in session thinking up nasty-sounding adjectives to apply to it, finally decides that something ought to be done, and orders engineers in the highway department to "vindicate themselves," of the charges that their estimates on hot mix projects were excessive.

We'll bet the governor hopes they can do it, too.

Why the Queer Laws?

IT IS getting to be a favorite indoor sport to dig up the queer laws that have at one time or another been written into most municipal and state codes and to have a good laugh at the expense of departed legislators and councilmen.

What a mine for sociological research? Perhaps a WPA project can go after it, and explain to us just what our forebears were up to when it seemed necessary to legislate against such things as these:

Feeding razor blades to hogs; driving a goat cart past a church on Sunday "in ridiculous fashion"; wearing to church a false mustache which causes laughter; permitting lions to run wild on the streets; tickling a girl under the chin with a feather duster.

All these activities were forbidden in one community or another. They sound like college initiation pranks or the bright ideas of practical jokers. Were they put on the law books because they were common practices, or were they aimed at solitary offenders who might have been cured by some simpler treatment? Perhaps we owe a vote of thanks to Hollywood and Elsa Maxwell for confining such cockeyed hi-jinks to private parties and permitting the average citizen to behave as an adult should.

Diagnosing Capitalism.

IT SEEMS that Thurman Arnold, the Yale professor nominated for assistant U. S. attorney general, has been misunderstood by critics of his book, "Folklore of Capitalism." He hasn't attacked capitalism, he explains, but has merely "diagnosed" it, and "has not taken a position as to its good or evil."

Worse and worse! The American people, generally speaking, don't want an objective, dispassionate attitude. They like partisanship, argument and battle. Anybody who isn't with us is against us. The fellow who, with irritating calmness, tried to jog along in the middle of the political and economic road, thinking his own thoughts and coolly analyzing both sides, gets ground between the right and left and is finally bumped off into a ditch.

If this new type of professor, who seems to be a sort of one-man brain trust, can't be branded with the radicals or the conservatives, he may be "spewed out" like St. Paul's brethren who were "neither hot nor cold."

A major worry these days seems to be whether the coal in the bin will last as long as the cold weather.

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL

JUST WHERE is Hitler heading? How far will he go? Those are the questions every foreign office, including our own, is asking. Perhaps even the German foreign office asks the question.

For Hitler is a mysterious force. His closest allies sometimes are bewildered by his moves. Ask Mussolini.

Hitler is a mystic. He believes he has a mission—for the Germanic peoples. He cannot understand that anybody should doubt that. He is compounded of all the ingredients that make a man once in a century or two a dangerous leader.

Such men believe themselves divinely inspired—even when they do not admit of a divinity.

A Corsican came to France—Napoleon—and led France. An Austrian came to Germany—Hitler—and leads Germany.

And he is likely to lead Germany much farther yet along the road of conquest.

BROOKS NO DEFEATS

Foreign offices gravely stick pins into small countries on the map, along the route the Germanic peoples possibly will follow under a leader who brooks no defeats. Like Joan of Arc, he hears voices, guiding him. And, like Joan of Arc, he eventually will be caught up with by the plodding, uninspired but patiently shrewd British.

It is the British, not the Jews or the Bolshevists or the Catholics against whom der Fuehrer should have vented his rage. But to the British he is polite; to the British he holds out a hand, one hand while with the other he takes his Austrias.

AN INTERESTING MAN

Hitler cannot be described in a word of denunciation. He cannot be belittled. Here is a man whose life is worth a study now, as it will be worth a study in the years to come. For Hitler is making history faster than any other man in the world today.

There is a fascinating book concerning him and Mussolini—"I Know These Dictators"—by G. Ward Price, one of the editors of the London Daily Mail, often described as England's most powerful paper.

Price is sympathetic. He belongs to that English group of newspaper proprietors, editors and industrialists who have a leaning Nazi-ward. Incidentally this group represented politically by Prime Minister Chamberlain, is liable to find itself facing a general election and overwhelming defeat if it snuggles any closer to Nazism.

Price's book is worthwhile for the human picture it gives of Hitler. And, too, perhaps unconsciously it strikes at the base of the man's affliction (which millions of Germans do not yet see as an affliction): This man has constituted himself a savior, not a tyrant. Nothing must stand in the way of the redemption of the crushed Fatherland. It must draw to its own breast its children scattered everywhere.

Like Spartans they must unite, drill and ward off the "enemies" that surround them.

They must make Europe safe for the Germanic peoples. And all who stand in the way are condemned by heaven—a folklore Nazi heaven where gods perform wondrous feats against tremendous odds.

Such are the Hitler-Nazi divinations.

What ordinary diplomatic intercourse can stop an inspired leader imbued with such a spirit? He does not even think in detail. He is ruled by deep emotions, by spiritual intuitions. He exalts the cruelest deep into the mightiest battle for right. He wonders only that other nations should be so backward as not to adopt his own ideology. He believes this newest Germanic "ideal" will spread throughout the world.

He speaks his heart to his people. They understand. Why shouldn't the world? All those who oppose are against "justice." Why should they not be committed to concentration camps and suffer the fate of the damned? And that is a truly horrible fate for the victims—quite innocent people.

WHO WILL STOP HIM?

Europe now asks, Who will stop Hitler?

Well, nobody will, unless he tries to violate the borders of the Soviet Union or France or Great Britain.

Both France and Russia believe they have been betrayed by Great Britain. But each believes Great Britain could not afford to see them attacked. If France should be invaded, the British Isles might be next. If the Soviet Union's territories are violated, the British dominions would consider themselves next—by Japan. And the British dominions, at the moment, are in a pretty state of temper over the mother country.

Australia and New Zealand and Canada are looking with longing eyes toward the United States and with angry eyes at England.

HERE IT IS IN WRITING

Now when I'm away from you,
I take my pen in hand;
I will use the loveliest
Words at my command.

I will put it down for you
To see, for this I know,
You will worry till you hear
Safe and sound I go.

Often I have said it but
Writing it is best,
So my deepest love I send,
All my heart confessed.

Who Should Conduct the TVA Investigation?

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—If ever a situation seemed to need impartial investigation it is the one arising out of the row within the three-man membership of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

This rumpus is hard for a bystander even to take one side or the other on until a lot of testimony has been listened to.

Charges and counter-charges are ugly and voluminous enough, but thus far nothing has been substantiated. Surely some disinterested body ought to dig into the facts in the case.

OPPOSING VIEWS.

Chairman Morgan of TVA wants congress to appoint a committee to do it. The administration does not say so, but its obvious reasoning is that such a committee would have as its principal business the making of trouble for President Roosevelt.

An opposing suggestion is that the Federal Trade Commission should do the investigating. Chairman Morgan's answer is that this would be a case of one "independent office," consisting of presidential appointees, probing the record of another "independent office," or just the same appointive character; in short, that it would not be a genuine inquiry.

Maybe the administration is right as to congress, and Chairman Morgan is equally right as to the Federal Trade Commission.

CHAIRMAN'S RIGHT.

All the same, Chairman Morgan appears to be within his rights in demanding a fair investigation, somehow.

Directors Harcourt A. Morgan and David E. Lilienthal of TVA, in violent disagreement with their chairman, disregarding the investigation issue, say to the latter, "In the first place, you resign, anyway."

(Morgans are confusingly numerous in TVA. The chairman is Arthur E. Morgan. He and Harcourt A. have nothing in common. Do not confuse them.)

And President Roosevelt, in making public Lilienthal's and Harcourt A.'s demand for Arthur E.'s resignation, generally is assumed to have indorsed David E.'s and Harcourt A.'s proposition that Arthur E. should eliminate himself.

AS STEWART SEES IT.

Briefly, it sounds like this:

Chairman Morgan, on one hand, at loggerheads with Directors Lilienthal and Harcourt A. Morgan, on the opposite hand, "I want an investigation of the three of us."

To which Directors Lilienthal and H. A. Morgan rejoin, in effect, "You quit and get out; we don't care to be investigated."

Regardless of the basic merits of the controversy, who can fail in a modicum of sympathy with Chairman Morgan?—at least until something had been proved against him. And apparently he is not afraid of a show-down.

NORRIS WITH OTHER TWO.

Senator George W. Norris, the father of TVA, is with the two directors in opposition to their chairman. He is a high authority, but—

Chairman Morgan, when appointed to TVA, was in good standing among public power-ites. Ditto Director Lilienthal. For awhile there was no indication of conflict in the ranks of the TVA trio. It must have existed, however, for, when Lilienthal came up for reappointment, in 1936, the chairman fought it. Nevertheless, David E. was re-appointed.

Ever since then, relates Senator Norris, the chairman has been "mad as a hatter" and has sabotaged the whole TVA program.

SINCERITY UNQUESTIONED.

Nobody questions the Nebraska senator's sincerity. But is he, perhance, a bit of a fanatic?

Besides, Chairman Morgan has not dictated TVA's policies. He has been in a minority. Directors Lilienthal and Harcourt A. have been in a majority. He has not had his way. If mistakes have been made, they were not his mistakes — they were Harcourt A.'s and Lilienthal's.

There is the instance of Senator George L. Berry's claim that he and his associates had suffered millions of dollars' worth of damage because the Norris dam, a TVA enterprise, backed up waters on their Tennessee valley marble properties. A court commission has upheld Chairman Morgan's version that this was an attempt to "defraud the government."

Possibly it was not, but, as far as it goes, it is official.

One would think that the entire controversy was worth a congressional investigation.

FAIR ENOUGH

Los Angeles—Non-Union Capital.

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

LOS ANGELES—Unlike most other American cities, Los Angeles is politically shapeless and as insubstantial as a cloud and has no head man.

Affairs, like the notoriously wild and dangerous motor traffic, are conducted by the rule of every man for himself, and the chief of police took it upon himself, without any legal authority, to turn back about 50,000 penniless refugees from the so-called Dust Bowl and get away with it, on the ground that this mass immigration of hungry people was a menace to the peace and prosperity of the community.

Pegler

They were described as a cloud of locusts threatening to eat Los Angeles out of house and home, and the fact that they were Americans and subject to no legal immigration restrictions was deemed to be unimportant in the emergency.

Although the city has no boss comparable to Tom Pendergast in Kansas City nor any government head comparable to La Guardia in New York, there is a sort of great spirit in the person of Harry Chandler, the president of the Los Angeles Times.

FOE OF UNION LABOR

Mr. Chandler is 73 years old and is the heir to the authority and traditions of the late Gen. Harrison Gray Otis, who fought union labor to his dying day and made Los Angeles a non-union town. Mr. Chandler married the daughter of Gen. Otis, and he has been faithful to his late father-in-law's principles.

His own devotion to the old general's cause was strengthened by personal experience in the dynamiting of the Times plant in the fall of 1910. The charge which blew up the building, killing 21 men, was placed beneath his own office, in the hope that it would get him, but he had gone home when it went off.

Another bomb, placed in the general's home, failed to explode, and the two men who were the personal objects of the plot lived to see the assassins in prison and to exploit the disaster to the detriment of labor organization long after the public had forgotten the explosion.

Los Angeles became the refuge of manufacturers and other industrialists who did not want to be bothered by union troubles and grew vastly by contrast with and largely at the expense of San Francisco, where the unions were strong.

Mr. Chandler insists that the non-union shop also appealed to a good grade of workmen who had run foul of union rules, discipline, exactions and rackets in other places and had been harassed or blacklisted and barred from employment. He now interprets the dynamiting as a blessing in disguise and regards the 21 dead as martyrs to the freedom and the development of the city.

PREPARING SON FOR SUCCESSION

It is hard to interpret his attitude toward labor organization. The merchants and other business men are organized against labor organizations, but he says he thinks it would be a calamity if the unions were to be destroyed.

Yet he refuses to deal with unions and fights them constantly. He pays good wages and gives bonuses and claims to believe that the other employers are high-minded, conscientious men who are better judges of right and more reliable guardians of the workmen's interest than union leaders. There he takes his stand.

The great spirit of Los Angeles, at the age of 73, is a very rich man and is preparing his son, Norman, 39 years old, for the succession. He took over from his father-in-law and carried on in a manner to gratify the soul of the departed leader.

But union people cherish a hope that Edsel Ford, when he takes the throne, will modify the old man's policies, and it remains to be seen whether Norman Chandler, in the role of great spirit, will maintain the tradition of super-government from a publisher's office.

Let's Look Around

Along the Gulf Coast Scenic Highway.

—By G. J. KOCHENDERFER

TALLAHASSEE, Fla.—Strange, that this small city (about one-third the size of Mansfield) should be the state capital, when it is so relatively unimportant, as compared with a number of other cities that have come into prominence in modern Florida—Jacksonville, Miami, Tampa, St. Petersburg and Pensacola, for instance.

But in 1823, when Tallahassee was chosen as the state capital, its central location—from east to west in the north-Florida section—determined the selection, although the little city is now remote from the busy hum of the state's activities and away from the beaten path of tourists from the north.

Seat of the Florida state college for women and of the state agricultural and mechanical college for negroes, Tallahassee also reflects the activity common to a city in which the legislative and executive departments of state government function, and a look around the busy central section of the city gives no idea of the smallness of population.

After long enjoying the distinction of having the only brick capitol building in the United States, Tallahassee has concealed this fact by giving the brick structure a stucco covering, so that the original part will conform in appearance to several more modern additions being made to accommodate the steadily increasing requirements of this growing state.

Following a course entirely different from that of Huey Long, who erected the magnificent new capitol in Baton Rouge at a cost exceeding $5,000,000, Florida is moving along economical lines to expand facilities in the old capitol—and work on the most recent addition has been temporarily suspended until more money comes in to finish it.

* * *

LEAVING Mobile, Ala., and entering Florida from the west, the approach to Pensacola is made notable by a view of scores of airplanes, this being the location of the largest naval air training station in the country, with requirement that all naval aviators must be graduated from here.

Two hundred and fifty fighting planes of many types are included in the equipment and there are five landing fields for practice.

FROM Pensacola to Tallahassee two motor routes are available to tourists, one being a rather uninteresting drive over what is known as "the old Spanish trail," and the other a scenic highway, much of which follows closely along the Gulf of Mexico.

This highway is reached by crossing a four-mile toll bridge extending over Pensacola Bay, which route also gives opportunity to have a look at Pensacola Beach, on Santa Rosa island, a long stretch of sand so white that in many places it has the appearance of drifted snow.

In its full length Santa Rosa island extends 55 miles as a narrow strip from west to east, serving as protection from the sometimes rough Gulf of Mexico.

THAT not all of the magic of Florida's growth is confined to its peninsular section becomes evident as you reach Panama City, an unusually attractive and progressive small city that has developed the habit of doubling in population every little while—and which now seems on the verge of again performing that feat.

Located on St. Andrews Bay, and with a large paper mill as its principal industry, Panama City has also developed exceptional port facilities which add greatly to its community's present prosperity and future prospects.

Found happily and prosperously engaged in the lumber business in Panama City is George J. Philp, formerly of Galion and for a time a resident of Mansfield. Mrs. Philp will be remembered by many Galion friends as Miss Georgia Shumaker.

WHEN Postmaster General James A. Farley comes to Panama City soon to dedicate the fine new $135,000 postoffice building which has just been completed and put in use, he will find a condition that does not exist anywhere else in the country.

Inside the corporate limits of Panama City THERE ARE FOUR POSTOFFICES AND FOUR POSTMASTERS!

This unique situation has existed for almost ten years and came about when the Panama city limits were extended to include the villages of Millville, Bay Harbor and St. Andrews, each of which had a postoffice and a postmaster.

Although all of these places are now governed as a part of Panama City the three postoffices have never been abolished and each continues to function, with its postmaster and working force.

An additional oddity is that when a letter is mailed from one to another of these parts of the city a 3-cent stamp is required, instead of only the customary 2-cent local postage rate.

In the rush of things this absurdity has apparently been overlooked. The postmaster general will probably see to it that the beautiful new postoffice is made to serve the entire city.

A STRANGE natural phenomenon noted here is that a stretch of gulf coast in this general vicinity has but one tide each 24 hours—instead of the customary two. Government experts have been unable to account for this peculiarity.

At Port St. Joe, 36 miles east of Panama City, the duPont Florida interests have in readiness for operation an immense new paper mill, with plans in the making for a large rayon manufacturing plant nearby.

APPROACHING Tallahassee, a turn from the road gives opportunity to see Wakulla Springs, another of Florida's crystal-clear lakes formed by a flow of 150,000 gallons of water a minute from some mysterious source. Glass bottom boats give opportunity for visitors to see many varieties of tropical fish and the cavernous formations on the bottom of the pool, even at the maximum depth of 185 feet.

An attractive new hotel, the Wakulla Springs Lodge, has just been completed and an extensive improvement program for the park property has been started.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

Facing the Music.

James Fenimore Cooper, after a lot of study, concluded that the expression "facing the music" is derived from the world of the stage, where it is used of actors in the dressing room preparing, perhaps a little shakily, to go before the footlights, literally to face the music, which in this case, of course is the orchestra of the theatre.

The words are now but infrequently used in their strict senses, rather with the significance of appearing before one's judges and accounting for one's actions.

We would not be surprised if "facing the music" turned out to be of military origin, in allusion, it may be, to the drumming out of men dismissed by the United States Army; or to the difficulty of training army horses to face the regimental band; or to the fact that at militia muster, every man is expected to present himself fully equipped, when in rank and file, facing the band.

Timely Editorial

BUSINESS IS IMPROVING

An article in our news columns listed a number of scattered signs indicating Detroit will see brisker business and growing employment during coming weeks.

Foremost among these signs was, very logically, the fact that employment and payrolls already are beginning to grow.

Others included improvement in the used car situation, an indicated accompanying increase in automobile production, a revival of building construction under the stimulus of the new FHA law and an expected rapid rise in wholesale and retail trade volume as Easter nears.

Many local merchants, it was said, still have to place their Easter orders, whereas at this time last year most were stocked up already even for summer and fall trade.

These signs are encouraging indeed, and those referring to the depletion of inventories seem especially hopeful. Other factors may have played a part, but it was excessive inventories — generally and nationally speaking—that economists blamed for the business slump that began last fall.

What ends any business slump is the return of a buying psychology, the resumption of a sellers' market. It would be doubly true of such a slump as this, accordingly, that sound buying psychology could come only by moving the inventories that choked trade in the first place.—Detroit News.

FASCIST SWEEP TO BARCELONA FRIGHTENS CITY

Civilians Terrified by Boom of Cannon Fire; Flight to French Border Starts.

(By United Press)

HENDAYE, Franco - Spanish Frontier — Grave alarm was reported in Barcelona today as Generalissimo Francisco Franco's Moroccan cavalry swept east from Caspe towards the Catalan frontier, 20 miles away. .

Cannon fire was audible in the Catalonian capital, where civilians were terrified.

Men and women filled the streets, carrying banners demanding that the government turn over power to the extremist labor groups, the CNT, UGT and FAI, banded together by the danger of invasion.

Civilians were fleeing toward the French border from the region of Lerida as the Nationalists continued their powerful drive, occupying Alcaniz and Caspe.

Planes Drop Bombs.

Nationalist planes intensified their attack. They showered hundreds of tons of explosives on Barcelona, Tarragona and Reus and other coastal towns in some of the fiercest raiding since the war began.

The government called up the 1941 class of boys from 17 to 13 years of age. Mobilization was extremely difficult. Groups of men and boys were arriving at the border and attempting to cross.

Border reports said 2,000 guards were sent from Barcelona yesterday to increase the border patrol and prevent the escape of males of army age, especially youths.

Other guards were sent to Leirda to arrest and bring back soldiers fleeing from the front. As fast as they were taken they were put into trucks and moved back to the fighting lines.

Barcelona, for the first time since the war began 21 months ago, feared invasion. The people were accusing Premier Juan Negrin and Indalecio Prieto, minister of national defense, of having failed to secure enough planes, artillery and machine guns to hold off the attackers.

FLEET AT SEA

U. S. Ships Begin War Games Testing Defense Strength.

SAN PEDRO, Cal.—(U.P.)—The U. S. fleet moved out to sea early today for the 1938 war games that will give the Pacific coastline defenses a rigorous test of ability to repel a naval attack from a foreign power.

The sailings began shortly after midnight.

The fleet movement was kept a naval secret and it was impossible to distinguish which ships were in the vanguard as the warships moved through the channels of the Los Angeles-Long Beach breakwater.

For six weeks, approximately 60,000 officers and men on more than 150 surface craft and 400 warplanes will engage in mock battles testing theories learned in the 19 years' experience and study since the World war.

come to my attention today and the police have orders to make a thorough investigation of the cases and report personally to me.

"It has got to stop. The fellow who works or drives a car while on relief while the city pays his bills will be definitely eliminated."

Shelby Names Relief Clerk.

Shelby city council took its first steps in handling its relief problem last night with the appointment of Gail Haun as clerk of public welfare at a salary of $60 per month.

Shelby is one of the three subdivisions which will take over their own relief costs tomorrow on orders from the state auditor prohibiting the spending of relief money by the county.

Madison township trustees were still undecided today on providing for their share of the expense. The county received $5,529 for administration purposes from the state today. This will be divided among the three sub-divisions on the basis of their February relief load, County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe said.

Last month $14,215 was needed for the care of 1,028 cases in Mansfield while Madison township's costs were $6,568 for 384 cases. Shelby's 64 poor relief clients received $1,090 in aid.

Mayor D. B. Young of Shelby said that palns were being made for an unemployment bureau with Haun in charge.

The city council as a whole was appointed by Mayor Young as a public welfare committee to act as a board of review for persons applying for relief. Young said there were approximately 225 indigent cases in Shelby.

In the meantime county commissioners, who agreed to give the sub-divisions a clean slate when the shift of burden was made today, still had the problem of paying $30,000 in old relief bills before them.

Auditor Wolfe said that a transfer from the unused relief bond retirement fund would pay a part of the bills but he didn't "know about the rest."

WPA PROPOSES PLAYLOT PLAN

Recommends City Set Up More Grounds to Supplement Recreation Program.

A summer recreation program to augment the city's playground system and aimed at curbing juvenile delinquency, was laid before Mayor Claude M. Hunter yesterday by WPA officials from Columbus.

The WPA proposal calls for the setting up of several play centers in various parts of the city, in addition to the six regularly established playgrounds operated by the city recreation commission.

Federal funds would provide for trained supervisors with the city meeting the cost of renting the grounds and furnishing the equipment.

Hunter pointed out that he was "heartily in accord" with any plan that was for the general welfare of Mansfield citizens, but did not see how the city could finance the project at the present time. He called their attention to the fact that the renewal of a recreation levy was turned down by the voters last fall.

WPA officials, however, explained that civic organizations interested in curbing juvenile delinquency could supply funds through the sponsor. All supervision costs would be paid by WPA. They said that such a program would give employment to approximately 30 persons during the summer months.

The city recreation department operated playgrounds at Johns park, Liberty park, Prospect park, Western avenue school, Brinkerhoff school and North Lake park last summer.

Sees Trouble Ahead If Hitler Tries to Take Over Czechs, Too

The invasion of Austria by Hitler will not lead to war, but if the German dictator attempts to take Czechoslovakia, he may start something, Major Norman Imrie, associate editor of the Columbus Dispatch, said last night in addressing the City Formen's club at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Major Imrie, who spent last summer in Europe studying politics and economics, predicted that Hitler will continue his aggression until he has merged the German minorities in Europe under the same swastika.

"Mass suppression which exists in Germany today is not to the liking of most Germans," Imrie said, "but the younger generation believes Hitler saved the country after the war and is willing to go along with him until there is something better in sight."

In Italy, the situation is much the same, he said, with many of the people convinced that Mussolini saved them from a revolution.

"The real tragedy in the German picture is the manner in which Hitler has throttled the peoples' initiative, persecuted religions and forced his subjects to subjugate their own loyalties to loyalty to him," he asserted.

"Europe sent the kaiser to Holland to learn to buck-saw wood and make 65,000,000 Germans safe for democracy, and got rid of a lot of other dynasties of long-standing, only to go into an era of bullies and dictators," Imrie said. "Germany, Italy, and Russia have seen minorities become majorities and crush all articulate minorities."

Taking frequent "shots" at the Roosevelt administration, Imrie said there has been a dangerous drift to dictatorship in this country, but expressed the belief that the democracy-loving Americans will never permit themselves to be trampled as the Germans and Italians are today.

Imrie enlivened his lecture with characteristic stories and poems, kidding Scotchmen, politicians and ministers. A major in the Canadian army during the World war, Imrie is of Scotch descent, and is widely known for his humor and as a commentator on the modern scene.

He spoke last night before an audience of more than 200 which overflower the hotel ballroom. Wives of Foremen's club members were guests at the club's annual "ladies' night."

The musical program, arranged jointly by the club's program committee and foremen from the Ohio Brass company, included numbers by the Ohio Brass "little German band," dances and songs by the Garvin sisters, two Shelby girls, and vocal solos by Mrs. Mary Anglin of Mansfield. Mrs. Anglin led the group in several old-time songs.

C. F. Beddard, of the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company and president of the club, was in charge of the meeting.

The Fellowship of Prayer

Daily Lenten Devotion

By DR. WILLARD L. SPERRY

Tuesday, March 15. "What good thing shall I do, that I may have eternal life?" Read Matthew 19:16-22.

This incident restates, in the terms of the New Testament, the truth which we noted yesterday in an Old Testament story.

Someone has said that philosophy is far too much a matter of kicking up a dust and then complaining that you cannot see. There are religious people like that. They think that religion should be made up of secrets. They insist on making hard work of it. Christianity has always had to combat the "secret society" frame of mind. I like the healthy candor of Saint Paul's words to Agrippa, "This thing was not done in a corner."

So I have always remembered a sermon of Charles R. Brown's on the passage for the day. The young man wanted some special commandments for his unique case. He thought that there should be some peculiar provision for his private need, some particular demand upon his unusual powers. He was merely told to keep the commandments. "Which commandments?" he asked. "The commandments you have always known" was the answer. The beginning of Christianity is a matter of keeping better the commandments that we have always known and never more than half kept.

Prayer: O God, who hast spoken to us from infancy and childhood through the still small voice of conscience, grant that by hearing and heeding this voice we may prepare the way for that full-grown life which thou dost vouchsafe us through Christ our Lord. Amen.

'BIG MOMENT' NEAR FOR ONDOV

Student Undergoes Operation Tomorrow on Which He Has Staked All Hopes, Life.

It will be to locate this pressure and to relieve it if possible that Dr. LeFever will operate tomorrow.

While it may take a number of weeks to determine the success or failure of the operation, Ondov will submit to it tomorrow, knowing that it will determine whether he will recover and be able to go on with his life plans, or be a hopeless invalid the rest of his life.

A fund to finance the operation is being raised by Lutheran ministers of the city. Sunday four Lutheran churches of Mansfield took up collections for the Ondov fund, and $375 was raised, Rev. Herman L. Gilbert, treasurer, said. He added that a number of churches outside of Mansfield have indicated their plans to take up similar collections, and several individuals have expressed a desire to contribute to the fund.

Friday night the Senior Hi-Y group will give a benefit box social and dance at the Y. M. C. A. gym, from which the entire proceeds will be given to the Ondov fund. The event will be open to every high school student. There will be no expenses.

The accident in which his injuries were received, occurred on the Wooster road, near Hayesville, when the car in which six Wittenberg students were riding turned over several umes when it failed to make a turn in the road.

Mrs. Jenkins was born in England and came to Mansfield with her family when still a child.

Her brothers organized the Mansfield Sheet and Tin Plate company, now the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company. She left Mansfield to make her home in Canton only about five years ago.

Surviving Mrs. Jenkins besides her husband, Thomas, are the six Davey brothers, Albert I. Davey of Mansfield; Harold, of Detroit; Austin F., of Pittsburgh; William H., of Cleveland; and Samuel and James Davey of Canton; three sisters, Mrs. W. J. Hazeltine and Mrs. J. G. In addition, it was indicated, the president may send to congress a message dealing with the railroad situation, although this was expected to be dependent upon discussions opening today on problems facing the carriers.

A Farmer's Diary

March 14.

TODAY as soon as it was light I knew I would find earthworms moving in all parts of the upper soil. To be sure, any self-respecting angleworm would not want to drown himself now, when the best of life was about to begin . . . days of sunshine and shower, soft top soil, decayed vegetable matter, small fat living morsels to tempt his appetite.

This slimy, writhing creature is a helpful friend. Without him we could not live in comfort. He it is who plows the earth to a depth of one to two feet, pulling leaves and more leaves into his burrow. There in winter he lives in comfort while fields are white and icy winds are blowing.

In spring our friend begins to stir, for water fills his lowly bed. Fifty thousand strong to each acre of garden soil, he moves upward, tail first, and deposits little mounds of moistened dust upon the surface. This clay is ground so fine by his unusual gizzard that when I touch this little lump of earth it feels as soft as velvet.

In 10 years time they pile this powdered earth one inch thick, and put the farmer's bank account into his fields. They make his crops grow greener, the waving grain a sturdier height. It is they who wrap our mother earth in fruitful harvests and fill the horn of plenty to feed a hungry world.

JEWRY TO MARK MERRIEST OF ALL FEASTS, PURIM, TOMORROW

Purim, the merriest festival of the Jewish religious year, which commemorates the deliverance of the Jewish people from the evil plots of Haman, will be celebrated by Jews throughout the world beginning at sundown tomorrow night, and continuing until sundown on Thursday.

In Mansfield special services marking the opening of the observance will be held at 7 p. m. Wednesday at Temple Emmanuel, 132 West Second street in charge of Rabbi D. Rub.

The holiday, known in English as "The Feast of Lots," is one of happiness, rejoicing, merry making and feasting, and penetrates into the synagogue during the traditional reading of the Biblical Book of Esther, whose story forms the background for the holiday.

The famuhar story of Esther tells how the Persian Emperor Ahasuerus had chosen a beautiful Jewish maiden as his queen, and how her cousin, Mordecai, had won the favor of Ahasuerus. The king is tricked by his prime minister, Haman, into placing all Jews under his power.

Haman orders a general massacre of all Jews, but Esther, on the counsel of Mordecai, prepares a banquet for the king at which she reveals herself as a Jewess and denounces the traitorous Haman. The king then orders Haman hung upon the very gibbet he had prepared for Mordecai.

The gaiety of Purim is associated with the memory of this deliverance from the hands of Haman. The story is retold each year, not alone in the reading of the Book of Esther, but in plays and in pageants.

Feels Better Than In Months

This Young Man Suffered From Catarrh Five Years; World's Tonic Brings Relief.

"I feel better now than I have for months and all the symptoms of my troubles are gradually disappearing since I have been using World's Tonic, the new systemic Catarrh Treatment," said Wilbur Shilling, of 2860 Lincoln Way, West, Massillon, Ohio, a young man 23 years old, employed at Republic Steel Corp.

"I suffered for five years. I thought it was stomach trouble, but now I know it was nothing more or less than chronic catarrh of the stomach. Food lay like a lump of lead in my stomach. After meals there was always a lot of gas on my stomach and my heart fluttered. I was often short of breath, constipated, had headaches, was extremely nervous and my breath was foul. I lost weight right along.

"Stomach medicines did me no good, so I thought maybe my trouble was catarrh and I bought a bottle of World's Tonic and started using it. I am now on my third bottle. All the trouble I had before is gradually leaving me. I'm gaining in weight and strength and feel better than for months."

Catarrh is serious. Start fighting it NOW. And fight it with a treatment that you know is the best, World's Tonic. At Central Drug Store. (A-129)—Adv.

MRS. DALEY SPEAKS AT LITTLE FLOWER CLUB

'Mothers of the Presidents' Subject of Paper Written By Mrs. Jerome Hanley; Mrs. Thomas McDermott Entertains.

MRS. JOHN DALEY read the paper on "Mothers of the Presidents" prepared by Mrs. Jerome Hanley yesterday at the meeting of the Little Flower Study club at the home of Mrs. Thomas McDermott, Park avenue west. Beginning with Mary Washington she told that she was the daughter of a well-to-do Virginia family and was given all the advantages proper for a girl of that period.

Being orphaned at the age of 13, she lived with various relatives, met and married her husband, Augustine, at the age of 24 and met the difficulties of managing a large plantation and a big family on little money with admirable fortitude.

Another famous mother was Abigail Adams, mother of John Quincy Adams, sixth president of the United States. She is spoken of as a woman of rare mind, high courage and a patriotism not less intense and devoted than that of any hero of the revolution.

Abigail was denied an education, but she learned much from her associates and became a witty, spirited, romantic and brilliant woman marrying at the age of 20 and having the distinction of being the wife of the first American minister to England.

Eliza Garfield, mother of James, was the first one to have the pleasure of seeing her son in the White House. She was a deeply religious woman, the mother of four sons.
